2024-2025 VOYAGES | EXPEDITIONS.COM

An otherworldly realm that is surprisingly close to home, Iceland showcases the drama of our living Earth like nowhere else. In this land of geological treasures, the brightest gems are found in hidden corners and coves, where waterfalls flow through mossy canyons, glaciers tumble from mountaintops, and fjords carve paths from the sea to timeless fishing villages. Join Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic on a voyage to Iceland's most remote shores and discover the country's natural wonders in their wild glory.

Experience Iceland From a New Perspective with

Lindblad Expeditions and National Geographic are united in a shared mission to take curious travelers deeper into wild places that paint a richer picture of our world. Together, we craft itineraries that inspire and transform, pushing the boundaries of discovery to offer wholly unique experiences led by the foremost experts on your destination.

Ultimate Polar Expedition Ships

The purpose-built polar vessels in the Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic fleet set course for the top of the globe, outfitted with supremely comfortable accommodations and first-rate exploration tools. Each of these powerful yet intimately scaled ships embody the expertise developed throughout our decades of exploring this region, bringing you directly—and safely—into the heart of Iceland’s coastal wilderness and allowing you to experience it in unique and immersive ways.

Travel with a Veteran Team

Every member of our staff—from our naturalists, photographers, and expedition leaders to our crew working behind the scenes—is committed to ensuring our guests have an unforgettable experience. Many are veteran Icelandic guides who have worked with us for decades, chosen for their extensive knowledge of subjects like geology, wildlife biology, and life and climate sciences. They, along with the thoughtfully selected guest speakers who join us on board, give rich context to the landscapes and cultures we encounter ashore.

Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic

Take Great Photos With the Pros

NATIONAL

In-Depth Undersea Program

As part of our in-depth undersea program, an undersea specialist uses a high-definition video camera and deploys a Remotely Operated Vehicle (ROV) that allows us to peer through steely Icelandic waters—up to 1,000 feet beneath the surface. Footage is shared during daily Recaps, inviting guests to witness surprising and unexpectedly colorful sea life from the comfort of our ship.

Commitment to Conservation

Sustainability is at the heart of our mission, and you can travel with peace of mind, knowing every voyage gives back to the places we explore through the Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic Fund, dedicated to the preservation of the planet and its habitats. Together with our guests, we have contributed more than $20 million to protect our oceans, restore marine and coastal habitats, and foster environmental stewardship around the world.

Far From the Crowds: Encounter Icelandic Wonders by Ship

Options for exploring Iceland have exploded in recent years, making it essential for discerning travelers to single out an itinerary that captures the true spirit of the country. There's no better way to experience authentic Iceland—far from the well-trodden Ring Road—than on an expedition to the country's far corners. Join Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic on a voyage that puts you up close with wide-open wilderness, local luminaries, and the less-traveled side of this beloved country.

Escape to Little-Known Destinations

An expedition cruise is your passport to the parts of Iceland overlooked by the tourist masses. You'll find yourself in tiny villages like Djúpavík, a onetime herring boomtown in Iceland's least populous region. In lieu of elbowing your way through crowds at Skógafoss, you'll see the awe-inspiring waterfalls of Dynjandi in the Westfjords. And in the idyllic hamlet of Djúpivogur, nestled on Iceland's eastern edge near the mouth of the Berufjörður fjord, you'll walk along a pristine black-sand beach as you take in the beauty and stillness of your surroundings.

Discover Remote Islands

The remote corners of an already-remote place offer a glimpse at wilderness that few will ever see. The Zodiacs in our fleet allow guests to explore far-flung islands without the need for existing infrastructure—and in a fraction of the time it would take for overland visitors. You can visit places like tiny Vigur, home to a single family and the smallest post office in Europe. On Grimsey, you'll find seabirds by the million and set foot on the Arctic Circle—the boundary runs right through the island.

“As an Icelander on board, I strive to add a cultural dimension to each voyage by sharing both my research on Icelandic politics and my personal experience advocating for local issues like gender equality.” — Silja Ómarsdóttir, Special Guest Speaker

Learn from Experts and Local Luminaries

On a Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic voyage, certified photo instructors help you capture nesting puffins and otherworldly sulfur cauldrons, and naturalists shed light on volcanism and whale migrations. Every element of your trip offers a new chance for expert context and analysis.

That's also true for the locals you meet. An Icelandic voyage might include a tête-à-tête on board the ship with luminaries like Silja Ómarsdóttir, a professor of Icelandic society and politics, and Ragna Árnadóttir, the first female secretary general in the Icelandic Parliament. Plus, you'll catch performances from artists like Hafþís Huld Þrastardóttir, who weaves together music and stories about rural Icelandic life.

Photographing Your Journey to the Far North

Iceland's otherworldly landscapes can defy description—sometimes, the best way to document your travel experience is through the camera lens. Certified photo instructor Andrew Peacock, who has made several circumnavigations of the island nation with Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic, reflects: "The incredible vistas, abundant wildlife, and fascinating Icelandic culture provide so many opportunities to create interesting photos." Here, he shares his top tips for capturing Iceland on camera.

Embrace the Weather

The weather in Iceland is just as changeable and dramatic as the landscape, and a photographer seeking blue skies or pastel sunsets may end up disappointed. Embrace the inevitable cloudy gray days and try instead to tell a story of what it feels like to experience these conditions.

Be Patient with Wildlife Shots

Iceland has some incredibly photogenic wildlife, including the darling of the far north: the Atlantic puffin. They are fast fliers—capturing them airborne is a challenge, even for the best wildlife photographers. Instead, find a seat near a cliff-top nest and wait patiently for the right terrestrial shot to present itself.

Seek Out Color

Many landscapes in Iceland are muted earth tones, but if you look closely, you can find color. Keep your eyes peeled for bright objects, like purple lupine flowers and red-roof buildings. When set against more neutral palettes, they can help make your photos pop.

Bring a Tripod to Photograph Waterfalls

Waterfalls are abundant in Iceland, and using a tripod to stabilize your shot allows you to slow the shutter speed and create an ethereal, silky appearance. Experiment with different shutter speeds to produce different degrees of water blurring.

Don't Underestimate Your Smartphone

It is easy to think that taking great photos requires professional-level gear. This adage rings truer to me: the best camera is the one you have with you when inspiration strikes. Smartphones take great pictures, are easy to carry, and are instantly accessible—they are a great tool for telling your story of Iceland.

Iceland With the Family: The Ultimate Expedition Experience

Iceland is the ideal destination for adventurous families—a land of geological extremes where Earth’s drama unfolds around every corner. In 2024, we will begin offering our exclusive program for young explorers in Iceland, along with more departures of our most popular Iceland expeditions so that you can explore this dynamic destination with your entire crew.

Nurturing Young Explorers

Join us on a summer departure of A Circumnavigation of Iceland or Wild Iceland Escape and your kids and teens can participate in an interactive curriculum that teaches young travelers 18 and under how to explore like scientists and tell the stories of their surroundings through photographs, videos, drawings, and more. Throughout their journey, they are led by certified field educators—inspiring mentors who help them connect with nature in a deeper way, sending them home with a newfound passion for the planet that lasts a lifetime.

Exploration for Every Generation

In 2024, we are offering additional departures of A Circumnavigation of Iceland and Wild Iceland Escape to accommodate more multi-generational families. These expeditions have something for everyone: the grade schooler fascinated by Vikings and Icelandic folklore, the teenager or college grad with a newfound interest in the climate sciences, the grandparent who wants to observe arctic terns and puffins. Each voyage offers a range of activities, from leisurely photo walks along volcanic beaches to vigorous waterfall hikes and 4x4 rides through the remote highlands. Whichever way you choose to explore, you will discover fascinating places as a family and bond over the memories of your expedition for years to come.

Discover Iceland With Ease

The wilds of Iceland are easier to access than ever before, with a host of nonstop flights to and from cities across the United States. Fly from the eastern seaboard to Reykjavik in just over five hours and find yourself in an otherworldly realm of glistening glaciers and gushing geysers. Exploring aboard our fleet, you'll enjoy the added ease of unpacking once and letting us take you from one destination to the next, along wild coastlines brimming with natural wonders.

INSPIRE THEIR INNER EXPLORER

Visit expeditions.com/familytravel for more information.

Go Beyond the Blue Lagoon

A convenient stopover on the journey between North America and mainland Europe, Iceland has become a popular place for extended layovers, with capital city Reykjavík and nearby attractions like the Golden Circle and the Blue Lagoon drawing the majority of travelers. The country's more remote corners are often overlooked, yet easily accessed by the small ships in the Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic fleet. Here are some of the wildest experiences you can have on our voyages in Iceland.

Cross the Arctic Circle

The tiny isle of Grimsey is bisected by the Arctic Circle, and we make a crossing on voyages to Iceland's northernmost reaches. For many travelers, the main attraction is the island's enormous puffin colony. More than 80,000 breeding pairs of the charming 'clown of the sea' come here each year to nest.

Ride a 4x4 Into the Remote Highlands

Hop into a 4x4 all-terrain vehicle for a thrilling ride through the rugged coastal mountains of eastern Iceland, one of the least-visited parts of the country. Along the way, explore several picturesque waterfalls and hike along trails with views overlooking the fjords.

Learn the History of the Herring Industry

In Siglufjörður on the northern coast, The Herring Era Museum exhibits the fisheries that transformed this fjord-side town into a thriving city in the early 1900s. Witness the 'herring girls' give a live-action demonstration of how to preserve fish after the catch, then cap off your tour with a taste of pickled herring.

Circumnavigate One of World's Newest Islands

Formed by volcanic eruptions between 1963 and 1967, rocky Surtsey is a designated UNESCO World Heritage site for its role in the study of species colonization. It took just three years for lichen and moss to colonize this isolated island—nearly 60 years after its formation, it hosts more than 30 types of plants.

Explore the Horseshoe Canyon of Asbyrgi

According to Norse mythology, this unique, u-shaped canyon was formed by the hoof of Odin's horse. Take in sweeping views over the valley, filled with birch and willow trees, and walk the trails that wind through adjoining canyon system, carved by glacial rivers and dotted with gem-like lakes.

Delve into the Wonderful World of Whales

Perched along the whale-inhabited waters of Skjálfandi Bay, the Husavik Whale Museum is one of the only museums in the world dedicated entirely to whales. The beautifully curated exhibits cover topics ranging from whale ecology to conservation, as well as artful displays of 11 astonishing skeletons.

Life on Board

Each ship in the Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic fleet is a destination in its own right, featuring superior amenities and cultural experiences to ensure that your time on board is equally rewarding as your time on shore. Whether you sail Iceland aboard National Geographic Explorer, National Geographic Endurance, or National Geographic Resolution, every aspect of your experience is an opportunity to connect with and celebrate the places you explore, from the culinary delights to the soothing spa treatments inspired by our surroundings.

Savor Icelandic Flavors

Sampling local cuisine is a highlight of any voyage, and we take great care to bring Icelandic flavors to the meals you enjoy on board. Our executive chefs design unique and innovative menus that prominently feature sustainably sourced seafood and produce from the places you visit, as well as wine pairings and guided tastings to enhance your culinary experience. Special onshore activities, like an in-depth exploration of Iceland's once-thriving herring fisheries, invite guests to forge even deeper connections with local culinary traditions.

The Singular Sounds of Iceland

Icelandic music is known for haunting, soulful melodies that capture the ethereal mood of the island nation. Ethnomusicologist Jacob Edgar curates musical experiences aboard our ships so that your time at sea is accompanied by songs that are reminiscent of our ports of call. For select departures, Jacob has also curated an exceptional lineup of Icelandic singers and songwriters, whose music offers a window into the region's cultural identity and brings the rich traditions of local communities to life.

LISTEN IN: Visit expeditions.com/icemusic to learn more about our immersive musical experiences in Iceland and listen to a playlist of Icelandic musicians curated by our ethnomusicologist, Jacob Edgar.

Indulge in Our Wellness Program

Greet the day with a sunrise yoga session or unwind in the spa with a massage, serenaded by the sound of soothing waves. Our dedicated wellness spaces—including treatment rooms, saunas, fitness centers, and more—encourage you to tap into the natural rhythms of your surroundings. Treatments are tailored to your individual needs, and each of our fully accredited wellness specialists is also a licensed massage therapist.

“By showing viewers the beauty of these remote places, I hope to inspire people to help preserve them.” —Zaria Forman

The Art of Expedition Travel

Our ship interiors tell the stories of the far north from a different angle—through the eyes of artists who find inspiration in our dramatic surroundings. Artist Zaria Forman curated the first-ever ship-based exhibitions of visual and auditory works, created to express the fragile beauty of the polar and sub-polar regions. Stroll the corridors and shared spaces of National Geographic Endurance or National Geographic Resolution on a guided walk to explore how the evocative paintings, photographs, soundscapes, and other artworks reflect your Icelandic surroundings. Self-Disinfecting Ships Lindblad Expeditions became the first self-disinfecting fleet with the rollout of the ACT CleanCoat™ system in 2019. This photocatalytic cleaning process activates when illuminated, continuously breaking down unwanted microbes such as bacteria, viruses, mold, and airborne allergens. The positive environmental impacts of this non-toxic, chemical-free system are many: less plastic in the supply chain and waste stream, and more than one million gallons of water saved annually. The system lowers our carbon footprint and creates a cleaner, healthier shipboard environment for guests and crew alike.
