As astonishing as the photos in National Geographic

And an exhilarating life adventure:

A Lindblad-National Geographic Vietnam and Cambodia Expedition

Lindblad Expeditions and National Geographic have joined forces to further inspire the world through expedition travel. Our collaboration in exploration, research, technology and conservation will provide extraordinary travel experiences and disseminate geographic knowledge around the globe.

Dear Traveler,

Sometimes great travel experiences are a matter of being in the right place at the right time. And this is the right time to visit dynamic, blossoming Vietnam and Cambodia—especially when you can do so aboard the river yacht Jahan, a perfect platform for our expedition.

Jahan is unquestionably the finest ship on the Mekong River. Built in 2011, Jahan features the fine craftsmanship of local artisans and hand-painted interiors; no expense was spared in appointing the ship with antique fixtures and furnishings.

The expansive public areas and decks are ideal for viewing, and photographing, the enthralling life and activity along the river—as are the balconies of each of the spacious cabins. But it is the access that Jahan offers us that makes it ideal for our expedition. We explore life along the river, tracing its evolution from its roots of over 1,000 years ago—and realizing that, surprisingly, it is only now on the brink of change.

We'll explore the ways the people scratch a living from the land and river: we'll see how their goods get to market, and we'll watch in wonder as vendors sell their wares on river and riverbank alike. We pull up to these riverbanks, too, to disembark at small villages—and take any and all forms of local “transportation” from oxcarts to motos to cyclos to tuk-tuks. Cambodian and Vietnamese guides travel with us on the ship, along with Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic experts, to answer questions and put the multitude of sights and experiences into context. This is a truly amazing voyage that touches the heart and soul of a way of life that will soon give way to modern influences.

And while this expedition focuses on the Mekong River, with the temples of Angkor as a highlight, if you have the time I would strongly encourage the optional extension to central and northern Vietnam for a complete picture of this “ascending dragon.”

I hope to share this adventure with you in the coming season.

Sincerely,

Expedition Leader

“Angkor is the scene of one of the greatest vanishing acts of all time. The Khmer kingdom lasted from the ninth to the 15th centuries.... As many as 750,000 people lived in Angkor, its capital, which sprawled across an area the size of New York City’s five boroughs, making it the most extensive urban complex of the preindustrial world. By the late 16th century, when Portuguese missionaries came upon the lotus-shaped towers of Angkor Wat—the most elaborate of the city’s temples and the world’s largest religious monument—the once resplendent capital of the empire was in its death throes.”

—“DIVINING ANGKOR,” NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC MAGAZINE, JULY 2009

DIVINE TEMPLES & SUBLIME SITES OF ANTIQUITY

Angkor Wat, the world's largest religious monument, is a wonder to behold. Our exploration of it is unique. We arrive for sunrise and watch day break over its five stone towers, built in the same era, the 12th century, as the great Gothic cathedrals of Europe. We have ample time to learn its stories and history from our expert guides.

The Angkor complex is vast. We also explore Ta Prohm, where the jungle's twisting vines are slowly reclaiming the temple; we venture to the fine temple of Banteay Srei to see its exceptional carvings; and we walk among the ruins of Angkor Thom, where faces are carved into every side of the towers of the Bayon temple: hundreds of stone eyes gazing at us across the centuries.

Venture beyond Angkor and gain a deeper understanding of the arc of Cambodian antiquity while sailing the Mekong River. Here, we explore an 8th century, pre-Angkor temple as well as modern sites with monks clad in saffron robes.

DISCOVER THE CHARM OF VILLAGE LIFE, THE BUSTLE OF SAIGON, AND LOOK INTO MODERN HISTORY

An expedition in Vietnam and Cambodia is a discovery of the histories, cultures, and religions of the countries—and their extraordinary differences. You'll find the charms and character of each through intimate village visits and curated urban experiences.

In Cambodia, visit a village where pottery is made as it has been for generations. See the floating houses and shops lining the riverbank, the fishing traps and nets, sugar palm, coconut trees, and the water buffaloes and the rice paddies that have been the foundation of Cambodia for 1,300 years. In Phnom Penh there are relics of the Khmer Rouge, who were responsible for millions of deaths—and you'll find the people you meet determined that this will never happen again.

Vietnam is a cosmopolitan adventure, with its industrious nature and northern influences from China—most evident in Saigon (officially Ho Chi Minh City), where motorbikes swarm the streets in a city of 10 million souls.

“The orange glow of the rising sun peeks over the horizon, and as the night transitions to day, Phnom Penh comes alive with activity. The streets, dark and quiet the night before, are bustling with action. Motorbikes fly by with their loads of fruits and vegetables, meats, fish, and handicrafts for the local markets. Tuk-tuks are everywhere, shuffling people from one location to the next.” —MAX SEIGAL, EXPEDITION NATURALIST

“Getting among the market stalls is a completely different sensory experience with the sounds of sellers repeating the price of their wares, the smell of fresh produce, and the sight of brightly coloured marigolds and chrysanthemums, some of the flowers required for Tet, the lunar New Year festival in a week’s time.” -PAULA SWART, EXPEDITION HISTORIAN, JANUARY 2014

INTIMATE, UP-CLOSE CULTURAL EXPERIENCES ABOUND

Explore the must-see sites in-depth with local experts, visit markets where outsiders seldom venture, and gain special access to this movable feast. You'll find the markets a sensory experience bursting with colors, sounds, and smells foreign to most. Women sing out their wares and products. And, in the lively fish and meat market it's common to see items advertised while still alive, readily dispatched for sale to waiting customers.

To get close, we have to travel as locals do. Flowing with the tide of motorbikes on our fleet of tuk-tuks in cities. Or relying on villagers to organize ox carts for a rumble through rice fields, past ponds replete with holy lotus flowers and herons, egrets, and pied kingfishers, before we reach their schoolhouse to meet the teachers and students.

Hoi An, a vital trading center with China and Japan between the 16th and 18th centuries, retains its international flavor. And the great Citadel and Forbidden City of Hue, Vietnam's former imperial capital, evoke the grandeur of Vietnamese culture in remarkable fashion.

You'll travel in the company of a Lindblad expedition leader and well-informed local guides, and you'll learn a great deal about the many things you see.
