Dear Traveler,

Each summer thousands of people flock to Alaska to experience its legendary wildness, but only a relative few will actually explore it. The expeditions we offer are for travelers seeking to go beyond the predictable ports and tour spots frequented by cruise ships. Our nimble ships can tuck into secluded coves and harbors, and pull close enough to calving glaciers to feel the thunder. And our fleet of expedition landing craft, plus our special access permits, allow us to land along the wild shores, and venture into communities that have remained deliberately roadless.

The vast number of visitors to Alaska come from June through mid-August. It's very much a family destination, and these mid-summer expeditions aboard our ships are alive with families, often three generations, and the pitter-patter of enthusiastic kids running up and down the decks is either a joyful sound, or not depending on your perspective. In May, the population joining us is, largely, adults only. So, if you are more inclined to be with other grownups not engaged with their children, this is a far better time to go.

I occasionally run into people who ask if May is too early and the answer is absolutely not. In spring, there's a wonderful sense of new life with wilderness awakening all around us and the mountains are still heavy with snow, making the landscape—and its reflection in the water's glassy surface—extremely photogenic. It's also the time that black and brown bears emerge from hibernation and begin to be seen near the water.

Whenever you choose to come, you'll benefit from our knowledge of the best sites to explore, gained through over 35 years of experience in Alaska, as well as the relationship we've established with the ultimate 'insider,' the Alaska Whale Foundation. There's no better way to experience Alaska and all its wildness than on an authentic expedition.

Best regards,

Sven-Olof Lindblad

OUR NIMBLE SHIPS ARE KEY TO AN AWARD-WINNING EXPERIENCE

NIMBLE U.S.-FLAGGED EXPEDITION SHIPS THAT CAN GO WHERE larger cruise ships cannot is only part of the authentic experience that earned us the 2019 Cruiser's Choice Cruise Critic Award for "Top Small Ship Cruise Line in Alaska." While the ships enable us to take you in deep where the bears forage, bald eagles soar, and whales spectacularly breach, the cool tools they carry enable you to have your own individual up-close adventures. Our fleet of Zodiacs, kayaks, and stand-up paddleboards let you experience these wild geographies with all your senses. Zodiacs let us explore virtually everywhere without being dependent on docks, ports, or piers. We can roam freely, feel the swells created by calving glaciers, or land on remote beaches to hike old-growth forests. Our kayaks and paddleboards let you paddle into quiet inlets to hear the sounds, or observe a family of otters up-close. In addition, you have the freedom to visit the Bridge to watch the captain and officers navigate the thrilling straits, narrows, and bays that make these waters so extraordinary to explore. Unparalleled access is what gives you incredible experiences, stories to share, a priceless stock of memories, and the best photos of your life.

Our ships in Southeast Alaska have the advantage of being U.S.-flagged. Foreign flagged vessels in Southeast Alaska must follow time-consuming protocols to clear customs. Our ships don't have to and therefore gain a day+ to explore the region.

Embark state-of-the-art National Geographic Orion for Alaska expeditions that take you further afield. Aboard this luxurious base camp, we'll visit the Aleutian Islands, the Bering Sea, and the coast of the Russian Far East. National Geographic Orion boasts an abundance of expedition amenities – Zodiacs, kayaks, stand-up paddleboards, Remotely Operated Vehicle (ROV) – and her nimble scale and adventurous build enable active exploration in even the most remote regions.

VENTURE INTO THE HEART OF WILDNESS: THE MYTHIC ALASKA OF YOUR DREAMS

DISCOVER IT IN THE SPRAY OF A WATERFALL MISTING OVER your Zodiac. The sound of a thrashing salmon as a brown bear pulls it from the river. In the concussive wave cast off by a massive piece of ice breaking off a glacier and crashing into the sea. This is where you discover that the wild American frontier is alive and well in the Alaska we explore. We've been sailing our small ships into the coast's hidden coves and passages for decades—we know where awesome is. It's on the trails carved by generations of bears tromping through the woods; in towns connected by a marine highway rather than a concrete one; in places free from infrastructure and unmarred by humans; places known to few and only accessible to adventurous souls. And now, thanks to our network, including the Alaska Whale Foundation team members who join us aboard our U.S.-flagged ships, we have an inside track on wildlife movements, which helps us put you into the middle of the action. Join us, and we'll take you right into the heart of wildness where you can make your own personal discoveries.

“It's not always clear just how special these encounters are that you're having. I can come along and point to a specific individual and say 'that whale there is 70 years old, the leader of this group, and one of the most remarkable individuals anyone has ever observed in the wild.' Once people start to hear these kinds of things, it really changes the whole whale-watching experience.”

YOU'RE ON THE FRONTIER. YOU SHOULD HAVE THE FREEDOM TO EXPLORE AS YOU CHOOSE

EACH DAY, WE PROVIDE A FRESH SET OF OPPORTUNITIES, all kinds of choices of what to do in a given location. Hike, paddleboard, kayak, and more. Hang out on deck with binoculars or with your photo instructor. Should you decide to sleep in, have a relaxing breakfast, and get a massage, nobody will look at you funny. You're on vacation. Your vacation. Our schedules are flexible and our itineraries are more a function of what's to see than where we need to be. If you like to move, consider our active Wild Alaska Epic or Wild Alaska Escapes itineraries (pages 22-27), where options for cardio hikes and other activities ashore abound. Conversely, if you like the option to be active on some days, still and observant on others—you can do both. It's your adventure. Our generous staff-to-guest ratio means you can always find a naturalist whose interests and approach you share, whether you want to head off on a trail walk or linger on shore pausing for photos and guidance from your photo instructor. You're free to explore the ship, find your nook or cranny. And you're always welcome to come up to the Bridge and shoot the breeze with the captain and officers.

There is no U in "group."

Okay, maybe there is—but only if you want there to be. Our idea of group travel means never being herded like cattle. Each day, you choose what activities interest you, which members of the expedition team you want to join, and what other guests you want to hang out with. You may all be on the same ship but you aren't in the same boat.

OUR ALASKA TEAMS ARE ACE AT DOING WHAT IT TAKES

VITUS BERING IN KAMCHATKA. JOHN MUIR CIRCA 1879 seeing glaciers for the first time. Neither of them have anything on you—you're a natural born Alaska explorer, too.
 But sometimes even the most intrepid of adventurers need a guide—and that's where we come in. Our team has the knowledge and the passion for Alaska that will kindle yours.
 They will do whatever it takes, from manning the spotting scopes so you don't miss a single passing whale; lingering as long as you want on deck to watch bubble-net feeding behavior; to offering an extra-long kayak when conditions enable it. They'll help you to see, do, and absorb all the extraordinary experiences—in comfort, with inspiration, great conversations, and excellent dining included.

“We were on deck with our Expedition Leader John Mitchell after an amazing day, when he mentioned there was a chance we might see something very rare, the Northern Lights. That night we were sound asleep when his gentle, nearly whispered 2 a.m. announcement came over the PA asking us to join him on deck for a wonderful opportunity. We threw parkas over our pjs and raced to the aft deck. To our surprise, everybody was there! John went above and beyond, to give us the best experience possible—an awesome sky show that we would otherwise have missed.”

THE EXHILARATION OF DISCOVERY WITHOUT THE THREAT OF HYPOTHERMIA

BECAUSE THE UNDERSEA IS VITAL TO YOUR UNDERSTANDING of Alaska, we've committed the technology and personnel resources to offer what no other travel company in Alaska does—an exploration of the vivid and surprising world beneath our ship. During the voyage, an undersea specialist will don special cold-water diving gear—or send an ROV (Remotely Operated Vehicle)—to explore and shoot video of Alaska's surprising marine environment. You'll get to see this amazing world on TV screens in the warm comfort of the lounge, with an undersea specialist as your guide. You'll see the vast kelp forests and discover strange and surprisingly colorful anemones, jellies, rockfish, octopus, and other unusual life forms that are only found deep beneath the surface.

Tools for Exploration Travel

In addition to a fleet of Zodiacs, kayaks, and stand-up paddle-boards, our Alaska ships are outfitted with hydrophones to listen to whales and sea lions underwater, Remotely Operated Vehicles (ROV), and splash-cams for an up-close view of the sea life underneath.

WHAT WILL YOU CREATE WITH NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC PHOTOGRAPHERS TO INSPIRE YOU?

WHILE YOU'RE DISCOVERING ALASKA YOU'LL HAVE THE benefit of a Lindblad-National Geographic certified photo instructor (CPI) at your side and at your service. He or she can help you with anything from camera settings to the basics of composition. Now, every guest—from smartphone users to advanced DSLR hobbyists—can stand side-by-side with top photographers, pick up tips in the field, and take great photos. Our CPIs are also trained naturalists so they'll help you better understand wildlife behavior. Whether you're choosing a shutter speed to capture a waterfall or framing a killer whale against a killer backdrop, in-the-moment tips from accomplished pros will help you return home with your best photos ever.

THE MOST EXHILARATING DISCOVERIES ARE THE ONES YOU MAKE TOGETHER

WHETHER IT'S KAYAKING OFF A SHORE STUDDED WITH foraging bears, or observing whales cooperatively feeding off the ship, shared activities in Alaska's wild and exciting environment can bring a family together. Our expeditions are seamless family getaways where everything is taken care of and there are fun, engaging opportunities to explore for kids of all ages. Younger children thrive in the safe, comfortable space of the ship where they can exercise a measure of autonomy. Teenagers and older kids often spontaneously form groups to join naturalists and National Geographic certified field educators for hikes and iPhone photo sessions. And we're discovering that our National Geographic Global Explorers program is an unqualified hit with all ages. And parents are delighted, even moved, by their kids engaged participation in all aspects of the program from getting their Zodiac driver's 'license' to journaling in their field notebooks.

Our exclusive program for families is the only one of its kind in Alaska travel. Developed in conjunction with National Geographic Education, it's designed to help kids and their families develop the attitudes, skills, and knowledge of an explorer. Families discover a unique way to explore and connect with each other and the natural world. And kids engage in a variety of cool optional activities, guided by a National Geographic certified field educator. Visit expeditions.com/family for program details. (Please note program is not available on National Geographic Orion voyages.)

SEATTLE

A large colony of fur seals is gathered on a rocky beach. The seals are of various shades of brown and tan, with some showing lighter underbellies. They are all looking in different directions, some towards the camera and others away. The background is filled with more seals, creating a sense of a large, active colony. The lighting is warm, suggesting late afternoon or early morning. The text "DISCOVER ALASKA'S REMOTE, SELDOM-SEEN WILD LANDS AND THE RUSSIAN FAR EAST" is overlaid in white, sans-serif capital letters in the upper left quadrant.

DISCOVER ALASKA'S REMOTE,
SELDOM-SEEN WILD LANDS AND THE RUSSIAN FAR EAST

EMBARK ON A SWEEPING ADVENTURE TO OUTLYING ALASKAN

islands that are seldom explored, breeding grounds for millions of seabirds and feeding grounds for countless whales and other marine mammals. Walk the streets of Provideniya for a glimpse of the former Soviet Union, where locals warmly greet us with a traditional dance and then proudly show us around town, including some of the only-in-Russia peculiarities they love to point out with a laugh. Visit islands now overrun with wildness that were the sites of fierce WWII clashes. Stroll bustling Alaskan fishing towns on remote islands, where you'll see bald eagles perched on boats, streetlights, and crab pots. Hear the lore and legends of the region's indigenous people and learn how they keep their proud traditions alive. See wildlife galore, from coastal brown bears to Steller sea lions, Pacific walrus, and northern fur seals.

Choose from three expeditions. Spend 13 days in the Bering Sea Wilderness: Pribilofs, Katmai & Kodiak to go where fur seals battle and waves crash against spectacular cliffs covered in raucous seabirds. Hike the Shumagin Islands through a tundra draped in green and the scattered remains of a petrified forest. And explore the beautiful Katmai Coast, where bears laze along the beach grass and fish the shore. Or over 22 days, choose to venture Across the Bering Sea: From Katmai to Kamchatka and go farther from Alaska and deep into the Russian Far East's tundra, bays, and volcanic mountains. Learn about a reindeer-herding culture, visit a bustling Russian port framed by volcanoes, and explore a region home to walrus and three species of seals.

EXPEDITION HIGHLIGHTS

Sail the legendary Bering Sea in regions that teem with marine mammals • See vast breeding colonies of seabirds and sea lions • See sperm whales diving along the edge of the Aleutian Islands • Learn about the cultures and histories of the people of Russia's Far East • See northern fur seals, Steller sea lions and possibly Pacific walrus • Explore the site of a fierce WWII battle, now the domain of rare seabirds • Visit coastal Katmai National Park, famous for its large population of brown bears • Discover the varied landscapes and intriguing cultures of the Russian Far East.

TRAVELING FOR GOOD IN ALASKA

THROUGH THE LINDBLAD EXPEDITIONS-NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

Fund we're working—in tandem with our guests—to support projects that are crucial to preserving Alaska's wilderness and wildlife for generations to come. To date, our travelers have invested more than $1.2M toward conservation in Southeast Alaska. We are currently making a difference through the support of two major initiatives:

- ✓ Alaska Whale Foundation: furthering conservation-oriented research to understand and protect Alaska's whale populations and other marine and coastal wildlife.
- ✓ National Geographic's Early Career Grants: helping the next generation become trailblazers in the fields of conservation, research, education, storytelling, and technology by supporting impactful projects in Southeast Alaska and beyond.

Ease Your Eco-Conscience: We're 100% Carbon Neutral

As of January 1, 2019, we are officially a carbon neutral company, offsetting the emissions of our fleet, employee travel worldwide, offices in New York and Seattle, all land-based operations, and beyond. Working in partnership with South Pole, the world's leading developer of international emission reduction projects, we now have a portfolio of six carbon project investments that align with the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals. Our investments focus on renewable energy, reforestation, and community-based projects in the regions our fleet visits, and beyond. We are always looking for ways to lessen our carbon footprint at all levels of our business, including equipping new ships with advanced engines and systems for reducing emissions, fuel, and waste.

So Long Single-Use Plastics

Soon appearing in every cabin fleet-wide—our new insulated water bottle for hot or cold liquids. An elegant design, it's part of our commitment to sustainability. Travel with us and you won't find any single-use plastics aboard—no plastic bottles, cups, straws, or stirrers. This effort, along with future plans including crew uniforms crafted from recycled plastic, support National Geographic's "Planet or Plastic?" campaign. Together we are helping to raise awareness about reducing the amount of plastic in the world's oceans.

WITH LOVE: SERVING SUSTAINABLE SEAFOOD & PRODUCE FROM LOCAL PROVIDERS

RESPONSIBLE FOR LAUNCHING THE FIRST- ever farm-to-table program in Galápagos, our Director of Hotel Services, Ana Esteves, is bringing her fresh approach to Alaska. Our culinary program, committed to sustainable seafood and regional produce, is rooted in relationships with our providers, many of whom have been working with us for decades. Fresh-off-the-boat fish, Dungeness crab for our spectacular crabfest, and salmon sticks to delight kids. Summer berries from coastal farms and local craft beers—the food on our ships opens new windows on Alaska for you. The exhilaration you feel at seeing breaching whales and calving glaciers? Our dedicated galley team feels it too, and their excitement is in every meal they serve, nourishing your mind, body, and spirit, and creating daily discoveries.
