NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC™

Lindblad Expeditions and National Geographic have joined forces to further inspire the world through expedition travel. Our collaboration in exploration, research, technology and conservation will provide extraordinary travel experiences and disseminate geographic knowledge around the globe.

DEAR TRAVELER,

Last year we celebrated our 50th Anniversary, and my father's, Lars-Eric Lindblad, achievement in pioneering citizen expedition travel to Antarctica. Most importantly, we celebrated his motivation: my father believed that seeing the planet's remote wild places with one's own eyes would make each visitor an advocate for preserving and protecting. His conviction earned him the designation of 'father of eco-tourism.' And it left the legacy that we honor and sustain today in our deep commitment to conservation through the Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic Fund.

Last season we looked backward, this season we're looking forward—toward what we can collectively accomplish through the simple act of traveling to Antarctica, and seeing it with our own eyes. Thanks to technology, we can accomplish quite a bit, individually and collectively. Our company has supported a number of projects, most recently James Balog's Extreme Ice Survey, by helping him place cameras to measure the retreat of Antarctica's glaciers. And our expedition teams have aided and abetted the work of many polar researchers and scientists over the years. Mark Phillips, reporter for CBS This Morning and CBS News with Scott Pelley, recently traveled with us aboard National Geographic Explorer to cover these stories, and others relating to climate change in Antarctica—and its implications for the rest of the world. To see these important and well-told CBS segments, please use the link at the bottom of my letter.

And speaking of visual storytelling—National Geographic photographers, flanked by Lindblad-National Geographic certified photo instructors are on every Antarctic departure, to inspire and assist you. With their help you will return home with your best photos ever. You can share these photos with friends and family, archive them to help you always remember your personal achievement in exploring one of the planet's most remote reaches, or do more. You could upload your photos to Google Earth, helping Google's 21st-century cartographers further depict Earth—for all the students, teachers, artists and scientists who seek to learn more.

Whether you choose to engage in photography or to simply be mindful and observant in Antarctica, we promise you will have a most absorbing and rewarding time. And, if you're passionate about wild places, we encourage you to make the most of your travel time, to explore further—South Georgia and the Falkland Islands. These are two of the most spectacular wildlife destinations—and for me, that's saying a lot, since I spent my formative years in Africa.

So, if you believe in meaningful and memorable travel, I hope you'll choose to explore the far reaches of the Southern Ocean with us this year. You can trust in our 50 years of experience to ensure both your safety and the best possible return on your investment of time and curiosity.

All the best,

Sven-Olof Lindblad

50 YEARS OF EXPEDITION HERITAGE

Lars-Eric Lindblad led the first citizen explorer expedition to Antarctica in 1966, and to Galápagos in 1967, and Lindblad Expeditions has been bringing intelligent, curious and adventurous travelers into the world ever since. In 2004 Lindblad Expeditions and National Geographic joined forces to bring individuals to the planet's most interesting places—and positively impact them through grants made by the Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic Joint Fund. National Geographic Explorer, completely renovated and inaugurated in 2008, is the embodiment of this partnership, and the product of our respective heritages—built to provide our guests with opportunities no other ship can offer. In 2014 we welcomed National Geographic Orion, built in 2004, into the fleet as a sister ship to Explorer. She was equipped with the complete set of expedition tools, and public space enhancements that distinguish Lindblad Expeditions. Two different personalities, same ultimate Antarctic experience.

OUR HALLMARKS

AUTHENTIC EXPEDITIONS.

It's a phenomenon: As soon as speed is measured in knots, life slows to just the right pace for looking around, seeing more and experiencing more. That's what an expedition is all about: subjecting yourself to the alchemy of wind, wave, motion, the momentum of discovery—and the company of people who can help you see, understand and feel the bloom of satisfaction fresh knowledge always brings.

SMART FUN is our expedition gestalt—engaging, knowledgeable, amiable, inclusive and thrilled to be there. Our staff create a climate, enhanced by shared adventures, that kindles sociability and feeds the desire to observe and learn. The people drawn to the National Geographic Society and our style of travel have a built-in like-mindedness that's an excellent basis for camaraderie and lasting friendships.

COLLECTIVE, BUT INDIVIDUAL. Our immersive expeditions are not merely about where you go, but the process of getting there. And once arrived, your sense of place will be enriched by our knowledgeable expedition teams who help you see with an insider's eye.

EXPERT ITINERARIES. It is a privilege to visit Antarctica, and our expedition teams' subtle, able logistics ensure not only your safety, but also the luxury of exploring the Peninsula's coves and bays in a two-person kayak, or by Zodiac with a naturalist and fellow guests. You'll have the opportunity to savor the slow, nearly reverent passage through the Lemaire Channel. And to steep yourself in the almost unimaginable wonder of Antarctica's vastness and silence—out there actively exploring, from the ships' expansive decks, or the Observation Lounge.

Our signature Antarctica parka is a functional blend of vintage expedition style and modern high-tech fabrication. Collectible and covetable, this season's parka comes with our 50th Anniversary commemorative patch. Find other additional collectible patches featuring Antarctic wildlife in the Global Gallery, and turn yours into a lasting keepsake.

PERFECT PLATFORMS FOR EXPLORATION

National Geographic Explorer and National Geographic Orion are genuine expedition ships, not cruise ships masquerading as one. Therefore, they are uniquely equipped to facilitate our brand of keen seeing and experiencing—with state-of-the-art tools for exploration. Unparalleled bases for discovery, they each enable the fullest expression of our expedition style: an intimate, authentic, learning-oriented environment. As you see here, both ships have virtually identical features and abilities, and provide equal safety features and an equally excellent Antarctic experience. Which ship to choose depends on the polar itinerary and departure you favor—find our three itineraries on pages 30-31 and 38-41.

Only the early season enables this unique thrill! During November-December, conditions permitting, our ice masters may “park” our ships in the ice. Guests can then disembark onto a frozen sea—to hike, cross-country ski, or snowshoe.

ACTIVELY EXPLORE EVERY DAY, IN MANY WAYS

National Geographic Explorer and National Geographic Orion Antarctic itineraries are crafted by explorers, and every itinerary point features opportunities to head out and discover, in one dynamic way or another. You can begin each day with a morning stretch class, or a pre-breakfast coffee at the 24/7 coffee/tea stations on each ship. And you can look forward to brisk walks or strolls, Zodiac tours or landings and opportunities to kayak, cross-country ski or snowshoe depending on the season, location and conditions. Our fleet of Zodiacs and kayaks, plus our teams' swiftness in deploying, ensures that you will spend no time wistfully awaiting a turn—the entire expedition community can be accommodated. For those whose fitness requirements demand it—the Fitness Centers are open at any time of day or night, particularly useful in Antarctica, where the midnight sun blurs distinction!

Opposite: A fleet of stable and virtually untippable kayaks allow for personal exploration. Clockwise from top: Explorers cross-country ski out on the frozen sea in the early season; an exuberant guest takes the polar plunge challenge; hikers head up for spectacular views of the polar wilderness; exploring amid the bergs via Zodiac with narration by a naturalist.

EXPLORE THE ANTARCTIC UNDERSEA

Inspired by Jacques Cousteau, Sylvia Earle, Enric Sala and other National Geographic explorers, National Geographic Explorer and National Geographic Orion are the only expedition ships that travel with Undersea Specialists who dive with a video camera and bring back footage for all to watch in vivid HD, in the dry warmth and comfort of the ships' Lounges—perhaps with a cocktail in hand and hors d'oeuvres at the ready. Always interesting, it can also be pioneering. In Antarctica, the footage you see may be of marine life few scientists, or human eyes for that matter, have ever seen.

Both National Geographic Explorer and Orion are also equipped with an ROV (Remotely Operated Vehicle) capable of exploring depths up to 1,000 feet, well beyond the limits of our human divers.

THE PENGUINS OF ANTARCTICA TO KNOW

THEM IS TO LOVE THEM

The penguin experience in Antarctica is another thing entirely: it's incredible, less seeing than being—since they move freely about, interweaving among us, and generally delighting us with their behavior. It's hard to resist the tendency to anthropomorphize as explorer Apsley Cherry-Garrard, author of "The Worst Journey In The World," so famously did: 'They are extraordinarily like children, these little people of the Antarctic world, either like children, or like old men, full of their own importance and late for dinner, in their black tailcoats and white shirt-fronts—and rather portly withal.' Each different species has their signature look and traits to observe and photograph. Visit during the Antarctic spring of November and December, and you'll get to see intriguing courting and nesting rituals, too. In addition, there's the penguins' natural predator, the deceptively genial looking leopard seal; Weddell and fur seals; plus the plethora of seabirds that thrive in the Southern Ocean to observe and admire—amid the spectacular landscape of the legendary ice.

Before Leif Skog, Lindblad Vice President of Marine Operations, became a captain in 1984, he worked as an officer on a variety of vessels including general cargo ships, LPG-gas tankers, a multi-purposed helium deep-diving support vessel and passenger ships carrying from 800 to 1,200 passengers. He has navigated over 250 polar expeditions, including over 125 Antarctic expeditions. As Chairman of the IAATO Marine Committee (International Assn. of Antarctic Tour Operators), he was a primary architect of the IAATO Emergency Contingency Plan for all vessels operating in Antarctica.

A+ EXPEDITION TEAMS

Our Expedition Leaders, known as ELs to staff and guests alike, are outstanding leaders who attract and inspire the naturalists, biologists, marine biologists, zoologists and undersea specialists who return each year, like migratory creatures, to the Southern Ocean aboard Explorer and Orion—to share the Antarctic ice with you and your fellow guests. Collectively, these specialists have hundreds of years of experience guiding travelers to the most interesting places in the world.

The captains of the Lindblad-National Geographic fleet have spent decades in the ice. They have each navigated over 100 Antarctic expeditions, ensuring that they have the crucial knowledge we demand—ice master status. An ice master is not only familiar with the unique wind, weather and current dynamics in polar waters, he or she is also intimately familiar with all the forms of ice and the unique challenges each form presents. Their seasoned ships' officers are also polar veterans, handpicked and well-trained to act without hesitation in any severe condition.

EXCEPTIONAL HOTEL STAFF

Stocking for our Antarctic voyages is a joy for our wine steward, since we provision the ships in Argentina and Chile, producers of world-class wines. Prepare to taste the best of the southern hemisphere.

National Geographic Explorer and National Geographic Orion, sister flagships of the Lindblad-National Geographic fleet share matching appetites for adventure, and dining excellence. Serge Dansereau, the head chef and owner of the iconic Bathers' Pavilion Café in Sydney, Australia, is a multi-award winning chef, renowned internationally, and considered 'the father of the fresh food movement.' He designs the menus and trains the staff aboard both ships. His menu concepts are brought to life daily by each ship's Executive Chef. Count on them to keep your expeditionary spirit fed, so to speak, and for daily diversity and regional flavors.

Dining rooms on both ships, like Orion's shown here, are inviting and informal. No assigned seating makes for easy mingling with congenial fellow guests, expedition staffers, and special guests. Breakfast and lunches are often buffet-style; dinners are artfully plated and served. Save room for dessert—extraordinary daily!

“Discovering sustainable local growers and fisheries on our itineraries to ensure that our guests ‘taste’ the regions they’re exploring is rewarding work. We provision for Antarctica in Argentina with fresh produce and sustainably produced meat and poultry. Unlike cruise companies which mandate a food program across the fleet, our chefs have the freedom to execute Serge’s smartly conceived dishes while taking advantage of what’s at hand. When a local fishing boat hails our ship with line-caught fish, for example, the chef can say yes! And when our ship is in the Falklands, we can obtain fresh vegetables from a hydroponic grower we know, and fresh lamb from an island rancher we’ve known for years. Our goal is for our guests to experience the geography through the food served aboard wherever possible. And to always dine extraordinarily well.”

—Ana Esteves, Manager Hotel Operations, Lindblad Expeditions

AN AUTHENTIC EXPEDITION EXPERIENCE STARTS HERE

Every individual who joins our expeditions is there for his or her own reasons: to learn about the region, to see how others live, to have personal encounters and experiences, and to see and observe wildlife. But what proves most satisfying ultimately is the esprit du corps of our expedition community. It's a deeply rewarding phenomenon. And our sister ships, National Geographic Explorer and National Geographic Orion enhance this experience-sharing. Our ships' lounges feature 'the circle of truth,' where talks, presentations, and the daily ritual of Recap, a hallmark of our expeditions, take place. In addition, both ships offer fully-stocked libraries, genial spaces where guests can look up any topic or creature that interests them, or just hole up with a good book. Observation lounges on both ships are lavishly windowed, for a constant connection to the world outside. And on both ships, guests have an open invitation to visit the Bridge—to watch the captain and his officers navigate, and to hang out with the naturalists endlessly on alert for marine animal and bird sightings while we're underway. Every inch of each ship presents a fresh vantage point for observation, for capturing an image, or for a quiet talk with a new-found friend. You will remember the satisfactions of life aboard long after you leave.

Far left: Explorer's Observation Lounge is flooded with light and non-stop views; the Library (left) is stocked with all manner of reference, geography-relevant and other books, plus cards, games, and an ever-ready stock of binoculars.

Clockwise from top: Sven Lindblad conducts a presentation from the 'circle of truth,' a hallmark of our expeditions and the design of our ships' lounges; expansive decks invite you outdoors to relax, read and observe the vistas; Captain Kreuss, a guest and the Expedition Leader review nautical charts on the Bridge, open to all during the voyage; Explorer's Bistro Bar is a lively alternative to the main dining room for meals and socializing.

Orion's observation lounge and library provide a welcome to readers, card players, and sailors who love to review the nautical charts on display. At right, Orion's main lounge is the center of shared life aboard; expansive windows invite in scenic views, and the reflective ceiling mirrors the ocean in a sublimely relaxing way.

From left: Explorer's fitness center offers a panoramic view instead of the usual gym TV screens. A classic Swedish sauna makes the Wellness Spa at the top of the ship a perfect place to end an active day. Massages and body treatments are the ideal counterpoint to walking, hiking, kayaking or a good workout—and a perfect way to take advantage of transit time at sea.

PERFECT ENDING TO ACTIVE DAYS

National Geographic Explorer and National Geographic Orion offer private spaces as inviting as their public ones. Explorer's 81 outside cabins, including 4 suites with balconies, 9 cabins with balconies, and 14 solo cabins, are decorated in a contemporary palette of relaxing earth tones. Orion's 53 outside cabins, including 9 suites with balconies, and 4 solo cabins, are traditional in style with rich jewel-toned fabrics and furniture. Both ships provide deluxe bedding—our signature feather duvet—and thick terry robes. All cabins feature flat screen TVs with news and movie programming, as well as channels broadcasting the live feed from our remote-controlled crow's nest camera, and our electronic chart system. And all cabins are equipped with ethernet and wifi connections, and USB ports for mobile devices.

Travel to the Antarctic region is a major decision, and, rightfully the focus of all your thoughts and planning until the moment you embark ship. However, our expeditions offer the travel equivalent of an amuse bouche to anticipate and savor. If you're aboard National Geographic Explorer, you'll spend time before embarkation in Buenos Aires, a warm, cosmopolitan counterbalance to the icy beauty of Antarctica. From the elegant interior of your hotel, the Sofitel Buenos Aires, and its strollable environs, to the tawdry glamour of tango in La Boca, and the fascinating Recoleta necropolis, the time you spend here will be highly gratifying, filled with discoveries. (The urbane flower shop across the street from the hotel? It's a speakeasy. Walk in and see how cool it is behind the walk-in cooler's door...) And if aboard

National Geographic Orion, Santiago will welcome you to the south with sun-splashed ochre walls, waving palms and breathtaking mountains ringing the city. Enjoy the highly walkable city, on your own or on the informative tour we provide, head out into the surrounding countryside, or opt to savor the warmth poolside in the elegant garden of your graciously-appointed hotel, Santiago's Grand Hyatt.

“COME FOR THE PENGUINS,

Chinstrap penguin.

COME BACK FOR THE ICE™

This phrase has talismanic powers for Antarctic travelers. Talk to anyone who has experienced the White Continent, and you'll hear it immediately. And for anyone who has yet to visit Antarctica, it has the solemn power of a prophesy.

Choose to visit during the Antarctic spring of November and December, and you'll see the penguins you've come for starting to nest, beginning the intriguing courtship rituals that will keep them together and allow them to raise a healthy chick. And you'll experience National Geographic Explorer and National Geographic Orion's unique capabilities in the early ice—as our captains guide them through floes, looking for wildlife, and if nature allows, driving into the fast ice to allow us to disembark for a walk on a frozen sea. And throughout the season, the legendary ice—the ice you'll come back for, larger than you ever dreamed possible, bergs of impossible beauty, each with its own shape and color—studs the passages, bays, and inlets we'll explore in wonder. Our expedition team will take advantage of the 20 hours of austral daylight to show you every facet of Antarctica, in every way possible: by Zodiac, kayak, or on hikes to ridges for views of towering mountains and cascading glaciers.

Antarctica will touch the deepest part of your soul. The things you'll see there will tattoo themselves on your heart. And if you get engaged in “aim & create” with the photographers aboard—you'll capture and keep it.

Sunset, Lemaire Channel.

Massive king penguin colonies, as splendid a sight as this world offers, can be found in a special place: South Georgia. A remote island in the Southern Ocean some 750 nautical miles from Antarctica, South Georgia is the new frontier—where savvy travelers with a passion for wild places can experience the genuine sovereignty and majesty of a last wild kingdom.

King penguins, South Georgia.

In addition to the colossal king penguin colonies, South Georgia is also home to thriving fur seal populations, elephant seals, gentoo and macaroni penguins, skuas, and the tiny but mighty South Georgia pippit, the only songbird below the polar front. We have the luxury of time here—to fully absorb the wonder of it: an island that grants us a vision of the primeval world in which animals have dominion, and live their lives in full.

The thrilling sight of tens of thousands of king penguins greeting you on a single beach in South Georgia!

And the Falkland Islands, a geography few of even the most knowledgeable travelers know, rivals South Georgia in its gasp-inducing pristine beauty and wildness. While the Falklands boasts a human population (3,000 people in total; 2,500 of whom live in the capital, Stanley) the animals—specifically albatross, rockhopper penguins, fur seals and more—vastly outnumber them and constitute a major draw for wildlife enthusiasts and photographers.

SOUTH GEORGIA AND THE FALKLANDS

19 DAYS/16 NIGHTS—ABOARD NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORER

PRICES FROM: $16,990 to $32,880 (See pages 44-45 for complete National Geographic Explorer prices.)

Book by June 1, 2017 to guarantee 2017/18 prices for 2018/19 departures.

Steeped in Shackleton and whaling lore, covered mostly in glaciers, South Georgia explodes with life: gentoo and macaroni penguins, enormous elephant seals and a thriving fur seal population. Here on South Georgia you can observe one of the world's great wildlife spectacles: literally tens of thousands of stately king penguins on a single beach. Add the human side of the region in the Falklands, reminiscent of Great Britain, with grazing sheep, tea and crumpets. And in this privileged place, the albatross reveal the beauty of their mysterious lives.

CONSIDERING ANTARCTICA?

There are 6 important questions to ask before you decide with whom to book your Antarctic adventure. This guide answers them all:

1. What kind of ship is best?
2. What safety features are vital?
3. What is the travel operator's experience?
4. How active will your Antarctic experience be?
5. What does the travel operator offer in terms of staff and onboard experts?
6. What is their environmental record & commitment to conservation?

Antarctica is the wildest, most remote and least predictable geography on earth. However, because many cruise lines, sensing a business opportunity, have begun to offer voyages to Antarctica, many travelers may be lulled into a false sense that Antarctica is now somehow "tame."

This guidebook was designed to give travelers information they can use to sort out the options. It will help you make the choice that will best ensure your safety and the quality of your experience.

TERMS & CONDITIONS

Reservations: To reserve your place, an advance payment is required at the time of reservation, and is outlined on pages 45 and 47. Payment is accepted by Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, or by check.

Receipt of your initial payment indicates your acceptance of our complete Terms and Conditions. We require written notice at the time of reservation for any physical condition, diet, or treatment requiring special attention.

Once your reservation is confirmed, we urge you to use your personalized online account for important information to help you prepare for your voyage. Managing your documents online will facilitate fast and accurate communication, and allow you to provide us with pertinent details we require, in order to complete your reservation. Your online account gives you access to your Expedition Guide, which includes valuable information specific to your voyage. You can also use your online account to make easy payments, view recommended flights and reading material, packing list, and more.

Final Payment: Final payment is due 120 days prior to departure. Payment schedules may vary for certain holiday voyages, due to high demand for these voyages. We reserve the right to cancel your reservation if payment has not been received by final payment due date.

Travel Protection Plan: We strongly recommend that you take advantage of our Travel Protection Plan. This plan offers comprehensive coverage to protect you from cancellation fees, costs incurred due to trip delays/interruption, medical assistance, and damaged or lost baggage, and provides medical assistance and evacuation during your travels. Our Travel Protection Plan is available for U.S. and Canadian residents only, and may be purchased any time prior to final payment due date. Travel Protection premiums are non-refundable once plan is purchased.

Smoking Policy: Smoking is allowed only in designated outdoor areas.

Responsibility and Other Terms & Conditions: Certain other provisions concerning, among other things, limitations of Lindblad Expeditions' and the National Geographic Society's liability for loss of property, injury, illness or death during the voyage will be provided to all guests on the ship's ticket sent prior to departure, and are also available on our website at www.expeditions.com/terms, or upon request. By registering for a trip, the guest agrees to all such terms and conditions.

Note: Itineraries and prices listed in this brochure are valid as of publication date, and are subject to change. Under normal conditions, the total expedition cost is guaranteed at the time of booking. However, the published price is determined far in advance of initial departure on the basis of then-existing projections of fuel and other costs. In the event we determine that current costs create an unsustainable financial model, including but not limited to increases in the price of fuel, currency fluctuations, increases in government taxes or levies, or increased security costs, we reserve the right to pass on these costs to you, to cover such unexpected increases. We will always provide a transparent accounting of the reason for such an increase in costs.
