LINDBLAD EXPEDITIONS

SHIPS BUILT FOR AWE

The largest and most versatile fleet in expedition cruising: 22 small ships—including the industry’s most advanced polar vessels—each built to explore beyond the reach of large cruise ships.

An award-winning culinary program that emphasizes destination-inspired cuisine and fresh, locally sourced ingredients.

ALL-INCLUSIVE FOR EXCEPTIONAL VALUE AND CONVENIENCE

From excursions and engaging talks to meals, onboard amenities, airport transfers, Wi-Fi and much more.

PIONEERING RESPONSIBLE EXPLORATION

Committed to preserving the natural and cultural heritage of every destination through the Lindblad Expeditions-National Geographic Fund.

Continuously minimizing the fleet’s environmental footprint through advanced technologies and best-in-class practices.

THE POLAR FLEET BUILT FOR AWE

The powerful ships in the National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions polar fleet bring you directly—and safely—into the heart of the Arctic’s icy wilds. Each small, nimble vessel was designed to deliver the finest in polar exploration and is helmed by a veteran “ice master” captain who possesses extensive experience navigating polar waters.

This fusion of advanced technology and unrivaled expertise allows National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions to stay flexible, go farther and deliver some of the most ambitious itineraries available at the top of the globe.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC ENDURANCE AND NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC RESOLUTION

Informed by more than 55+ years of polar experience, the 138-passenger National Geographic Endurance and her sister ship, National Geographic Resolution, are in a class of their own. These highest ice-class vessels can navigate polar passages year-round and safely explore uncharted waters, and the wave-slicing technology of their patented X-bows® ensures the smoothest ride possible. Sleek Scandinavian design and special amenities—including infinity hot tubs, fire pits, saunas and twin glass igloos equipped for overnight stays—deliver a supremely comfortable onboard experience.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORER

With a storied history working in Norway's famed Coastal Express, the 148-passenger flagship National Geographic Explorer was completely rebuilt to sail the poles. With an ice-strengthened hull, well-appointed shared spaces and a dynamic suite of exploration features—including an interactive chart room, a high observation lounge and a low-profile bow with dramatic views—this extraordinary ship is devoted to discovery, every detail revealing a dedication to curiosity and wonder.

LIFE ON BOARD

Each ship in the National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions fleet is a destination in its own right, featuring superior amenities and engaging experiences to ensure that your time on board is equally rewarding as your time on shore—from exquisite culinary delights to soothing spa treatments, performances from local musicians and more.

SAVOR THE FLAVORS OF YOUR DESTINATION

Sampling local cuisine is a highlight of any voyage, and the culinary team takes great care to bring Arctic flavors to the meals you enjoy on board. Executive chefs design unique menus that prominently feature sustainably sourced seafood and produce from the places you visit, as well as wine pairings and guided tastings to enhance your experience.

Special onshore activities—like a mussels tasting on Cape Breton and an in-depth exploration of Iceland’s once-thriving herring fisheries—invite guests to forge deep connections with local culinary traditions.

WELLNESS AT SEA

Greet the day with a sunrise yoga session or unwind in the spa with a massage, serenaded by the sound of soothing waves. Dedicated wellness spaces—including treatment rooms, saunas, fitness centers and more—encourage you to tap into the natural rhythms of your surroundings. Treatments are tailored to your individual needs, and each of the fleet’s fully accredited wellness specialists is also a licensed massage therapist.

SOUNDS OF THE FAR NORTH

Whether it’s a soulful Icelandic folk song or a cheerful Newfoundland sea shanty, music offers a window into the identity of our northerly destinations. Ethnomusicologist Jacob Edgar curates musical experiences aboard the ships, bringing melodies that echo your ports of call. For select voyages, he has assembled a lineup of performances featuring local musicians whose songs bring the traditions of the far north to life.

“Traveling in Svalbard is a kind of “lottery”—one rarely knows what will be behind the next corner. It might be a stunning view or a bucket-list animal, like walruses, an Arctic fox or maybe even a distant polar bear. The unpredictability creates a true expedition spirit, which makes Svalbard so exciting for both first-time visitors and seasoned guides like me.”

—KERSTIN LANGENBERGER, NATURALIST

SVALBARD & NORWAY

WITNESS THE WILD BEAUTY OF THE FAR NORTH

Few places showcase the drama of their creation like Norway, where a maze of rock and water cuts the coastline from tip to tail. Sail the country's iconic fjords, or set your sights on Svalbard, an Arctic archipelago framed by snowy peaks and ice-checked waters. On this icy frontier, polar bears outnumber people, and multiple types of whales are regularly spotted offshore.

For the Scenery Seeker: From the waterfall-laced fjords of the mainland to the snowscapes of Svalbard, Norway has some of the most stunning scenery in the far north.

For the Wildlife Lover: Svalbard's snowy shores are as wild as the Serengeti. Set out on an Arctic safari to spot polar bears prowling the ice, walrus hauled out on shore and reindeer prancing across tundra.

For the Active Traveler: Kayak amid sparkling icebergs and soaring fjords, and hike sweeping glacial valleys and jagged granite peaks.

For the Photographer: With epic wildlife, stunning landscapes and endless light from the midnight sun, this is a dream destination for photographers. A National Geographic photographer joins every voyage to help you bring home your best photos.

When to Go: April-June

In spring, Svalbard is covered in ice and snow and bathed in astonishing light. The landscapes come alive in the summer, the best season for wildlife watching.

PHOTOGRAPHING SVALBARD WITH NICK COBBING

 Drawn to the breathtaking Arctic landscapes, National Geographic Photographer Nick Cobbing has traveled to Svalbard nearly every summer since his first visit in 2005—often as an expert for National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions voyages. Here, he explores the photographic allure of this remote, high Arctic archipelago.

Taking photographs is an important part of the expedition experience because it helps you understand the landscape. What makes Svalbard an inspiring place for a photographer is the diversity. Ice and snow, glaciers, a very powerful ocean—there's a lot to capture here.

With the Zodiacs, we can go ashore to photograph the tundra's grasses, lichen and mosses. There's also the beautiful purple saxifrage flower—a signature of Svalbard—that puts color into pictures.

Some subjects from my favorite images: Svalbard reindeer, which aren't found anywhere else. Sometimes an Arctic fox might be curious about us. There is also abundant birdlife: kittiwakes, eider ducks and Arctic terns—beautiful birds that come here to feed and forage in the summer.

The glaciers and snow influence the light because they reflect it back up so that there's light coming out of the ocean and darker spaces in between. It creates a whole palette that we can incorporate into our photography.

“Much of Iceland remains untouched by humans, and that’s our greatest treasure. With National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions, we get to enjoy it in a way that minimizes the footprint while maximizing the experience.”

—STEFAN THORGEIRSSON, CULTURAL SPECIALIST

ICELAND & THE FAROE ISLANDS

RICH CULTURES AND VOLCANIC LANDSCAPES

Iceland showcases the drama of our living Earth like nowhere else. In this land of geological treasures, the brightest gems are hidden in remote corners, where waterfalls flow through mossy canyons, glaciers tumble from mountaintops and fjords carve paths from the sea to timeless fishing villages. Let the Viking spirit guide you from these surreal shores to the Faroe Islands, where turf-roofed cottages and archaeology bring the legends of ancient seafarers to life.

For the Geologist: Located atop a geothermal hotspot and at the meeting point of two tectonic plates, Iceland's landscapes were born of geological upheaval—you'll see volcanoes, waterfalls, geysers, hot springs, lava fields and much more.

For the Culture Enthusiast: On remote shores, delve into rich Icelandic traditions, like eiderdown harvesting and herring fishing.

For the Wildlife Lover: Sea cliffs and shorelines are aflutter with a multitude of seabird species: kittiwakes, shearwaters, gannets and colorful puffins. Humpbacks, orcas and several other cetaceans swim offshore.

For the Active Traveler: There are a multitude of ways to interact with Iceland's elemental landscapes, from hiking to waterfalls and volcanic craters to mountain biking into the backcountry and strolling black-sand beaches.

For the Young Explorer: Every Icelandic itinerary features the exclusive National Geographic Explorers-in-Training program for kids and teens 18 and under.

When to Go: May–August

Snow melts into rushing waterfalls in springtime. Puffins arrive in mid-April and stay until mid-August, and whales swim here in the summer.

ICELAND WITH THE FAMILY

THE ULTIMATE EXPEDITION EXPERIENCE

Iceland is the ideal summer vacation destination for adventurous families. Itineraries are crafted for people of all ages, with interactive excursions that inspire young explorers and seasoned travelers alike.

With several major airlines offering direct flights between Reykjavik and cities across the U.S.—from New York to Seattle and beyond—an unforgettable family adventure is just a few hours away.

Special Offer

Save 50% on cabin fare for children and young adults aged 22 and under on select sailings of Fire and Ice: An 8-Day Sailing Around Iceland and A Circumnavigation of Iceland when you book by Jun. 15, 2025. See pg. 34 for details.

NURTURING YOUNG EXPLORERS

On Fire and Ice: An 8-Day Sail Around Iceland, A Circumnavigation of Iceland and Exploring Iceland: Fjords, Waterfalls and Wildlife, kids and teens can participate in the National Geographic Explorers-in-Training program. Led by certified field educators, young travelers will learn to explore Iceland like scientists and tell the stories of their surroundings through photographs, videos, drawings and more.

EASY ACCESS TO ARCTIC WILDERNESS

The wilds of Iceland are easier to access than ever before, with a host of nonstop flights to and from cities across the U.S., including New York, Washington, D.C., Chicago, Denver, Seattle and more. Fly from the eastern seaboard to Reykjavik in just over five hours and your family will find itself exploring an otherworldly realm of gushing geysers and iceberg-filled lagoons.

EXPLORATION FOR EVERY GENERATION

Each Icelandic voyage offers a range of activities, from leisurely photo walks along volcanic beaches to thrilling 4x4 rides through the remote highlands. However you choose to explore, you will discover fascinating places as a family and bond over the memories of your expedition for years to come.

GREENLAND

EPIC ICE AND INUIT CULTURES

An emerging destination for adventure travel, Greenland's glittering icescapes, calving glaciers and dynamic tundra converge in a dazzling tableau that's best explored by kayak, Zodiac and on foot. Go beyond the country's icy surface to experience cultural encounters in Inuit communities at the top of the world. Depending on the time of year, there may also be the opportunity to watch the northern lights paint the night sky in neon waves.

For the Scenery Seeker: Many fjords have dramatic backdrops: sweeping glacial valleys, massive icebergs and glaciers flowing from Greenland's ice cap.

For the Wildlife Lover: Greenland hosts all the icons of the Arctic: musk oxen, walruses and polar bears—plus, its waters are home to 15 species of whales.

For the Culture Enthusiast: Visit farms and villages in the UNESCO region of Kujataa in southern Greenland to better understand the confluence of Inuit, Viking and Danish cultures.

For the Backcountry Explorer: Our polar ships use ice-strengthened hulls and satellite imagery to access little-known parts of this remote wilderness. Disembark on rarely seen shores and feel the thrill of being a modern-day explorer as you chart new paths across the tundra and through the fjords.

When to Go: June–August

Travel around the summer solstice for endless adventure under the midnight sun. Early in the fall, turn your eyes to the sky for a chance to spot the northern lights.

CANADA

IN THE WAKE OF GREAT EXPLORERS

In the high reaches of the Canadian Arctic, near-mythic species like musk oxen and belugas rule a wild kingdom of ice and snow. Venture into their world on a journey through the fabled Northwest Passage, and discover the cultures that have thrived on this wild frontier. Or trace the lineage of Arctic exploration to the Maritimes, where vestiges of the Vikings, Basque whalers and French settlers intermingle in this once-popular landing spot for westward voyagers.

For the Scenery Seeker: In the Northwest Passage, explore glacier-carved islands and channels that stretch for hundreds of miles—a stunning display of raw geology and big ice.

For the Wildlife Lover: Canada is home to an incredible profusion of wildlife, including polar bears and beluga whales. You might spot rare or reclusive species, like musk oxen and narwhals.

For the Culture Enthusiast: Delve into Canada's Indigenous cultural heritage while meeting with artisans from Inuit communities, and explore the rich seafaring traditions of the colorful fishing villages in the maritime regions.

For the Historian: Hear the dramatic stories of the Vikings who settled on Canada's North Atlantic shores and the polar explorers who sought out the icy frontier of the Northwest Passage.

When to Go: August–September

Summer welcomes the warmest temperatures of the year—ideal for outdoor exploration. Ice in the Northwest Passage has receded to allow for a full transit and deeper exploration of remote inlets and coves.
