WHAT WILL YOU DISCOVER
WHEN YOU GO "A-VIKING?"

LONG BEFORE THE WORD VIKING ENTERED MODERN ENGLISH evoking images of pillaging barbarians, in Old Norse Viking (pronounced Vee-king) simply meant ‘an expedition overseas.’ To ‘Fara I Viking’ (Go a-Viking) was to leave home for an extended period in search of ‘fehu’ or wealth, which for Norsemen was more than just money—‘fehu’ meant adventure, knowledge, and luck. Our four voyages to Iceland and the Northern Isles go in search of all that, and much more. There are exhilarating discoveries to be made in this remarkable region: stunningly beautiful landscapes from brilliant green hillsides to stark, imposing mountains; geological marvels like bubbling mudpots and explosive geysers; incredible birdlife; ancient history; modern-day culture; and fascinating locals who can trace their lineage back to the settlement of their country.

And traveling there by ship—as the Vikings did—opens up so many possibilities, granting you rare access to a seldom-seen side of these destinations. It means coming ashore in hard-to-reach towns and villages that rarely see outsiders; arriving by Zodiac at the base of world-class waterfalls which are hours away by car or bus; and sailing into fjords from the open ocean and watching them narrow as you approach. Ready to go a-Viking?

“When visitors dive deeper into Iceland, they find so much more than they intended or expected. It is one of the few destinations in the world that has a little bit of everything. But many only see Reykjavík and its outer environs. While these are worthy destinations, and our guests will still experience those iconic sites, the real heart of the country is in its remote landscapes, vast interior, and hard-to-reach coastal gems where we center our explorations.”

—JEN MARTIN,
Director of Expedition
Development

OUR VETERAN TEAM IS ACE AT DOING WHAT IT TAKES

THE VIKING EXPLORERS HAVE NOTHING ON YOU—YOU'RE A natural born discoverer, too. But sometimes even the most intrepid adventurers need a guide, and that's where we come in. Our team has the knowledge and the passion for Iceland that will kindle yours. And our generous staff-to-guest ratio means you can gravitate to the naturalists whose personalities and interests match yours. They will do whatever it takes, from manning the spotting scopes so you don't miss a single passing whale; lingering as long as you want on deck to watch and photograph puffins feeding or slowing shutter speed to capture a waterfall; to offering scenic Zodiac rides, hiking at your pace, or hot chocolate to mitigate the glacier ice. They'll help you to see, do, and absorb all the extraordinary experiences—in comfort, with inspiration, great conversations, and excellent dining included.

VOLCANOES AREN'T THE ONLY HOT SPOTS HERE, THE CULTURE SCENE IS TOO

LOCALS IN ICELAND AND THE NORTHERN ISLES HOLD FAST TO tradition and you'll find it infused in many different facets of their culture—from music and dance to daily life. Thanks to our deeply rooted network in the region, we've created uncommon encounters that will connect you to these places in an incredibly authentic way. As you explore, from tiny charming hamlets to more bustling cities, meet some of these fascinating people and discover a deeper understanding of both their past and present lives.

MUSIC — Icelandic music is full of haunting melodies that capture the ethereal mood of this island nation. Our ethnomusicologist, Jacob Edgar has curated an exceptional line-up of Icelandic singers and songwriters whose work will fill your soul with a sense of place. Preview some songs at expeditions.com/icemusic.

DANCE — In the Faroe Islands, observe traditional Faroese chain dancing—originally a medieval ring dance, the animated and theatrical performance blends movement, rhythm, storytelling, and song.

KNITTING — Traditional Faroese knitting is some of the best in the world. Discover the stories behind the intricate patterns handed down through the generations and the Faroese sheep whose lanolin-rich wool ensures practically waterproof sweaters. Opportunities for experienced knitters to take a lesson with a local.

LANGUAGE — Though all distinct and different, the languages throughout this region stem from the same root—Old Norse. Listen for unique nuances in remote spots like Unst and Foula, the last two places in Shetland where Norn, a relic of Norse times, was spoken.

LOCAL INDUSTRY — Learn about eiderdown production from a 7th-generation family of farmers on tiny Vigur Island. While in Siglufjörður, the center of Iceland's once-thriving herring industry, a lively re-creation—and tasting—brings the fishery process back to life.

LOCAL LUMINARIES — On select departures local personalities—hailing from the world of politics, filmmaking, geology, journalism, and more—join us aboard to add additional insights that will enhance the voyage.

“I have focused on young Icelandic singers and songwriters who are incorporating their rich folk traditions into new, hip contexts. Icelandic music is born from the ancient sagas and folk tales of witches, goblins and elves that roam the countryside. Music, like wine, has a “terroir”, an innate quality that reflects the environment in which it was cultivated.”

NEW DISCOVERIES DELIVERED DAILY

SIGLUFJÖRDUR, ICELAND, JULY 20, 2019, BY NATURALIST JAMES COYER

Our Daily Expedition Reports are a valuable trip planning tool. With photos, videos, and detailed accounts straight from the field, they offer a taste of the people, places, and wildlife you may encounter on different itineraries at different times of year.

“Today we visited the small town of Siglufjörður and the internationally acclaimed Herring Era Museum. Before entering each of the museum’s three buildings, we witnessed a recreation of just what the Herring Girls did during the herring boom of the 1940s & 1950s: Grab a sardine, remove the head and entrails with two strokes of a sharp knife, and push the body down a chute to another Herring Girl for careful salting and meticulous packing into a barrel—all in less than five seconds. The processing was accompanied by Icelandic shouts and songs.

After a rousing introduction to the fascinating museum, we sailed to Akureyri, listening to a presentation on Vikings in Iceland en route. On arrival, we had a choice of touring the Akureyri Botanical Gardens or the Akureyri church where a suspended ship hangs from the ceiling. After free time in the city, we returned to the ship for cocktail hour and recaps preceding another five-star dinner.

Activities continued after dinner with the first National Geographic Explorer music festival. Four highly successful and award-winning Icelandic groups performed simultaneously in four different areas of the ship: Ylja (duo), Ástíðir (trio), Snorri Helgason, and Ragnheiður Gröndal. Each performed as the night progressed and guests were encouraged to stroll at their leisure among the performances. All musicians and guests converged in the lounge afterward for discussion and jamming.

From herring processing to botany to modern music, it was a fascinating, diverse, and over-the-moon day—particularly appropriate on this 50th anniversary of the moon landing.”
