A photograph of the Bernal Glacier in Patagonia, Chile. The glacier is a massive, white, and blue ice formation with jagged edges and crevasses. It sits on a dark, rocky moraine. In the foreground, there is a body of turquoise water, likely meltwater from the glacier. The sky is a pale blue. The overall scene is majestic and serene.

Setting eyes on the spectacular glaciers on the glacial moraine? That's the exhilaration of discovery.

EXPLORE ONE OF THE PLANET'S
REMOTEST PLACES AND EXPERIENCE FAR-FLUNG
ECOSYSTEMS—EFFORTLESSLY

FOR MANY TRAVELERS, THE DESIRE TO VISIT PATAGONIA WAS SPARKED by reading Bruce Chatwin. Published in 1977, his In Patagonia was hailed as a masterpiece, revolutionizing the travel genre and making its author famous overnight. It certainly provided our expedition teams with lasting inspiration. We have explored Patagonia often over the decades. Now, our newest sister ships, National Geographic Endurance and National Geographic Resolution, will sail the coasts of Patagonia during their inaugural seasons.

There are many reasons to explore Patagonia, and numerous hurdles to doing so. In Chatwin's time and long after, backpacking and car or bus travel were the only real means to cover great distances. Despite the recent surge of interest in Patagonia and an increase in air travel, getting from Point A to Point B has not improved dramatically, since many Patagonia flights route back up to Santiago and Buenos Aires before connecting back down to Patagonia.

Our three expeditions featured here provide ideal solutions. Not only will you be able to easily and enjoyably traverse great Patagonian distances to experience the astounding diversity, you will also enjoy access to places and opportunities you'd otherwise miss—in the company of our expert team, who will do whatever it takes to ensure you the consummate Patagonia experience.

“On no previous journey am I conscious of having done more. Patagonia is as I expected but more so... Physically it is magnificent... in the east you confront the great wall of the cordillera with bright turquoise lakes (some are milky white and others a pale jade green) with unbelievable colours to the rocks. Sometimes it seems that the Almighty has been playing at making Neapolitan ice cream... alternatively striped vanilla, strawberry and pistachio in bands of 100 feet or more. Imagine an upland lake where the rock face on one side is bright purple, the other bright green, with cracked orange mud and a white rim.”

— BRUCE CHATWIN,
Letter to his wife, Elizabeth

PRIVILEGED ACCESS TO THE ISLAND AT THE END OF THE WORLD

ISLA DE LOS ESTADOS, ALSO KNOWN AS STATEN ISLAND, HAS been so seldom seen that it holds a near-mythic place in the region's collective consciousness. In 2015, ours was the first outside expedition ship granted the privilege to travel here since it was essentially closed off to tourism decades ago. Since 2012, members of our expedition staff have worked with authorities to develop guidelines for responsible tourism. Now, you can enjoy an island of exceptional interest with extraordinary wildlife. Blue-eyed shags nesting in the tussock grass. Magellanic penguins heading down to the sea to feed. South American fur seals basking on the rocky shoreline, and in the crystal clear waters, South American sea lions swirling through the beautiful kelp beds.

We are proud to have helped to pave the way for sustainable eco-tourism to the island. All of our voyages call at Staten Island, so no matter which you choose, you'll have the unique opportunity to discover it. Hike through the last stands of forest before the Andes disappear into the Atlantic Ocean, to a knoll overlooking the placid bay where 'the lighthouse at the end of the world' stands, the inspiration for Jules Verne's adventure novel of the same name. (Perhaps you'll join fellow guests reading it on location!) See the evidence of natural forces that impressed Verne. And experience the moving sense of being in sovereign nature.

THE PERFECT PLATFORMS FOR EXPLORING PATAGONIA

OUR BRAND NEW SHIPS NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC ENDURANCE AND National Geographic Resolution are both equipped for exploring a region that boasts scenic fjords, monumental glaciers, granite spires, rolling pampas, forests, a beckoning island—and little infrastructure of docks or piers. We'll revel in our remoteness, using the ships' fleet of Zodiacs to land on a Staten Island beach. Or deploying the fleet of kayaks to experience the calm beauties of a Chilean fjord. The onboard ROV, guided by our undersea specialist, might discover something even few scientists have seen. And when we're at sea heading to a new destination, each ship is designed to keep you connected to the stunning scenery outside—with expansive decks, acres of glass windows, a warm and welcoming Bridge, plus an observation lounge, library and main lounge conducive to seeing all there is to see and do, including informative talks and presentations. Each ship's galley team is dedicated to keeping your appetite for adventure kindled and sated. And the onboard amenities contrast nicely with the vagaries of Patagonia weather. Cossetting cabins and suites, with our signature feather duvets, offer the perfect ending to active expedition days.

“To the extent our company has a mantra, it's the ‘tonic of wildness.’ We believe, as Henry David Thoreau did, in the healing power of wild places for the human spirit.”

PERFECT PLATFORM

OUR VETERAN TEAM IS ACE AT DOING WHAT IT TAKES

BECAUSE YOU DESERVE AN ABSOLUTELY UNFORGETTABLE experience, our team will do whatever it takes—from manning the spotting scopes at sea and on land so you don't miss a single wildlife sighting, hiking at your pace, slowing shutter speed to capture a waterfall, or lingering to observe and photograph a guanaco, to ferrying you hot chocolate across the icy straits as you explore spectacular fjords by Zodiac. Our team has the knowledge and the passion for Patagonia that will kindle yours. You'll explore under the expert guidance of a veteran expedition leader, naturalists, a certified photo instructor, and a National Geographic photographer, plus an undersea specialist, wellness specialist, and video chronicler. And our generous expedition staff-to-guest ratio means you can gravitate to the naturalists whose personalities and interests match yours. They'll help you to see, do, and absorb all the extraordinary experiences—in comfort, with inspiration, great conversations, and excellent dining included.

“The tall snow-capped mountains were beautifully lit by the morning sun, and the vast openness of remote Karukinka made one feel small and humbled. As we cruised to shore in our Zodiacs, our naturalist staff spotted the largest existing pinniped, the southern elephant seal. We saw around 100 Andean condors circling and feeding on a dead elephant seal—a rare thing to see! We walked over driftwood, through meadows, and into the fungi-heavy forest. Guests feeling extra adventurous trekked to a scenic waterfall. It was a wonderful introduction to the southern Chilean ecosystem.”

— DAILY EXPEDITION REPORT,
Karukinka Park, 2018

A photograph of a person with curly hair and glasses, wearing a dark blue jacket, standing on the wooden deck of a boat. They are holding binoculars to their eyes, looking out over a vast, icy landscape. The boat's railing is visible, with a red life preserver hanging on it that has the word "GEOGRAPHIC" printed on it. A yellow buoy is also attached to the railing. In the background, a massive glacier flows down a snow-covered mountain into a body of water. The sky is bright blue with scattered white clouds.
