NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC™

Tom O'Brien has been a Lindblad expedition leader for 33 years, and he has always been one of our very best. But it's in his capacity as host aboard Sea Cloud, together with his wife Patrycja, that he has had the most transformative impact on so many of our guests' lives. He and Patrycja have created a quality of experience aboard this tall ship that is truly extraordinary. Recently Tom shared with us some of his thoughts about traveling on Sea Cloud. Knowing that we offer some exceptional itineraries, I'd asked him to tell me what we might not and should know about them. I was particularly struck by this: "If you want the Sea Cloud experience and to explore the parts of the world where a sailing ship truly belongs, then any one of our Mediterranean itineraries offers an incomparable experience. But if you want THE quintessential Sea Cloud experience, then you must choose the Caribbean."

I have asked him to explain why, and he does so here. I hope you find his reasons, and the prospect of having this experience yourself as compelling as I do. So, next winter in the Caribbean aboard Sea Cloud for some of us? I hope so!

All the best,

Sven Lindblad

“Sailing aboard Sea Cloud is always extraordinary, but experiencing her in the Caribbean, the most beautiful yacht in the harbor, is quintessential...”

Our program in the Caribbean is focused almost exclusively on the joy of being aboard Sea Cloud. The spectacle of her 60-person crew engaged in the art of sailing her is entertaining and awe-inspiring, regardless of whether they're going aloft in a light breeze or following the captain's orders to set the skysails in a thrilling wind as we're scudding along at 6.5 knots.

And for anyone with an appetite for history, romance, or just the momentum of a great story, the drama of a tall ship sailing where good winds are most reliably found, through islands that were shaped, traded, won and lost by such ships, is just plain exhilarating.

I mentioned beauty, but it's a simple fact that returning to Sea Cloud at anchor after a day's excursion is a constant source of pride for everyone who travels on her. To be able to say “I live here” as you re-board the most beautiful yacht in the harbor is a rare privilege.

Imagine a ship over 360' long and displacing 2,600 tons moving effortlessly under wind power alone at 10mph. Our sails are made of a very durable synthetic material in Poland and have an average life of about five years. The Sea Cloud carries almost 32,000 square feet of sail (3,000 meters).

A photograph showing two men in silhouette on a boat, looking out at the ocean during a sunset. The sky is a mix of blue and orange, with clouds catching the low light. In the background, the masts and rigging of a large, multi-masted sailing ship are visible, illuminated by warm lights.

“The lecture and interpretive component our historian provides is integral...”

Caribbean history, language, and religion are extremely interesting, and Tom Heffernan, our voyage historian, is particularly gifted at bringing them to life. His program of talks is perfectly coordinated to our Caribbean itinerary, creating genuine awareness and cultural connection. I have had many guests tell me that they've vacationed in the Caribbean before, but never found it particularly interesting until now. And others remark on how eager and confident they feel to interact with locals in the authentic pockets of the Caribbean we visit, that are untainted by big cruise ships. And some guests have commended us for not canceling visits, as many cruise lines did, to this area following the news of the 2017 hurricane. The islanders we met were highly appreciative of our interest.

Dominica, known as the 'nature island,' is the only island we visit where signs of the hurricane are apparent—much of the forest canopy was stripped by the winds. However, to the delight of our naturalists and guests, it has maintained that distinction as the most lush of the Caribbean islands, as the burgeoning signs of the forest rapidly regrowing are everywhere. And thankfully the historic Fort Shirley at Cabrits National Park remains completely intact.

Shot of guests returning to Sea Cloud in the evening from Bequia, the island to which young Alexander Hamilton's father moved, effectively abandoning him. Ron Chernow's masterful Hamilton biography is a book many guests have had aboard these past couple of years.

“Where else can you enjoy a shorts-and-deck-shoes vacation with black tie amenities?”

Guests who google “Sea Cloud” see a lot of jacket-and-tie imagery and might conclude, incorrectly, that Sea Cloud is too formal and stuffy for a Caribbean vacation. Not true with Lindblad Expeditions. Any guests who’ve been aboard National Geographic Explorer, National Geographic Orion, or others will find it as relaxed and informal as any ship in our fleet. Guests who have never traveled with us before will find it as easygoing as they want for a winter vacation. And the contrast between the casual ease Lindblad fosters, and the ship’s old-world elegance and five-star luxury is a real treat. And, there’s another Lindblad difference aboard Sea Cloud—outstanding food.

Under the Lindblad team’s guidance, the menus are thoughtful and relevant, reflecting local cuisines, and using plenty of local ingredients and fresh fish—in large part due to encouraging the creative authority of our chefs and hotel managers. I can tell you based on innumerable guest reactions that the dining—indoor, outdoor, from snacks to meals—is a highlight.

*Sea Cloud also carries a very sophisticated selection of liquors of all types, and many guests enjoy the opportunity to sample so many different whiskies, rums, cognacs, or liqueurs at no cost, given our offer of complimentary bar tab and crew tips.

There is a large crew of 60 who delight you with their skill and daring in rigging Sea Cloud’s massive array of sails. And another large contingent of staff devoted to your comfort and pleasure during your stay aboard. Enjoy their services with our compliments—gratuities are included in the voyage price.

“Go back home and tell your friends and family that this exists, because most people don’t know that you can even have this kind of experience in the 21st century.”

Some have described it as time travel. Others have compared it to being in a National Geographic TV special. To me, traveling aboard Sea Cloud is an overall multisensory experience of the rarest kind. And this is particularly true of Sea Cloud in the Caribbean where little competes with the sensual pleasure of the balmy air and the constant trade winds that invite everyone out on deck to enjoy the passive pleasure of watching the athletic young crew scrambling high in the rigging, lolling in what Marjorie Merriweather Post called the “blue lagoon,” reading a terrific book in a comfortable deck chair, or learning to capture the sun on sails with your Lindblad-National Geographic certified photo instructor.

I’ve heard that this past winter was a slog for a lot of North Americans. Who knows what next winter will bring, but I invite you to hedge your bets by booking a Sea Cloud Caribbean vacation now! Join us for one of the most extraordinary experiences contemporary life still offers. We look forward to welcoming you. And please, pack casually.

“EUROPEAN MONARCHS, PRINCES, PRESIDENTS, CABINET MEMBERS AND CELEBRITIES LIKE THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF WINDSOR FREQUENTLY VISITED...”

— FROM AMERICAN EMPRESS: THE LIFE AND TIMES OF MARJORIE MERRIWEATHER POST

Sea Cloud was originally fitted with two lavishly appointed owner's suites and seven guest staterooms, decorated in a range of styles. In 1979, twenty-six years after Marjorie Merriweather Post sold her, the ship, having weathered years of illustrious service and eventual neglect, was gallantly rescued and refurbished.

Now Sea Cloud has 28 cabins and two owner's suites, on three decks, in seven categories.

The owner's suites were left virtually intact. Post's cabin, the larger and more opulent, features the all-white, Louis XVI décor, used in nearly all her houses, that was a personal signature. Her husband E.F. Hutton's cabin is richly elegant, boasting a walk-in closet and a pink Carrera marble tub. Beyond the beauty and cossetting they promise, these rooms provide an incomparable and rare opportunity. If indeed, "The past is a foreign country," as this famous quote attests, then Sea Cloud invites you to visit and discover it.

Category 4 cabin.

A SHIP THAT RIVALS HER MOST THRILLING DESTINATIONS

Sea Cloud is a destination and a reason to travel all in one, but add our unique Caribbean voyages, our carefully crafted Sicily-Malta, Greek Isles, and Greece and Dalmatian coast itineraries, plus our unique Lindblad-National Geographic expedition style to her allures, and you have an incomparable travel inspiration. You will also have one of the most exciting sailing experiences of your life as you watch her strong, agile team scale the rigging to manage her billowing sails, or admire the masterful seamanship of her Captain. For non-sailors, it will rank among the greatest pieces of pure 'theater' you'll ever have seen.

HOSPITALITY NOTE:

Sea Cloud's 60-person crew is unusually large for 58 guests, and as is the case on any ship, tips are a large part of the crew's income. However, aboard Sea Cloud, we handle the tips; you simply enjoy the show!

SICILY & MALTA: FROM SPECTACULAR ANTIQUITY TO MODERN CULTURE

There's a treasure trove of some of the world's greatest ancient places and impressive ruins to explore on this itinerary—grand enough to equal the thrill of discovering them aboard Sea Cloud. You'll see no fewer than five UNESCO World Heritage sites: the city of Valletta, with Malta's megalithic temples built by a thriving civilization

5,000 years ago; Agrigento's Valley of the Temples, one of the most impressive sites of antiquity; Siracusa, with a Duomo built from the ruins of the Temple of Athena; the Aeolian Islands with glowing volcanoes; and we'll have stunning views of a sixth UNESCO site, Mt. Etna.

However rich their history is and as spectacular as their ancient ruins are, Sicily and Malta aren't simply monuments to the past—they are vibrant cultures, with music and a cuisine that have been exported all over the world, and their people have settled widely in other places. And our circumnavigation of Sicily and exploration of Malta—an extraordinarily multifaceted journey—will reveal both past and present.

As we sail the Mediterranean, Tyrrhenian, Ionian, and Aegean Seas, you'll fall under the spell of life at the whims of the Greek god of wind Aeolus—and even venture through the narrow and dynamic Strait of Messina—the purported location of Homer's monsters Scylla and Charybdis, the rock and the hard place through which Odysseus had to sail. The romance of history lives aboard Sea Cloud.

Left to right: Temple of Castor and Pollux; fine dining on a terrace in Sicily; figures in the Fountain of Artemis in the Piazza Archimede in Ortigia, Siracusa

“A highlight is a very special dinner at the 18th-century Castello degli Schiavi, the setting for many scenes of the Godfather films. Our host shows us the gardens, gives us a tour of the house, and presents an unforgettable Sicilian dinner. It's a remarkable night, and you're guaranteed to want to watch the Godfather films again.”

THE GREEK ISLES IN DEPTH—MUST-SEE SITES AND HIDDEN GEMS

The Cyclades are the essence of the Greek Isles. The islands the gods call home, and the Greek Isles of your imagination: colorful fishing boats bobbing in azure waters; white-stucco villages built over a caldera filled by the sea; where grapes and olives have been continuously cultivated for a millennium.

We'll explore the important sites: Sail into the famed caldera of Santorini and let our guides reveal the picturesque, less-walked side streets and hidden cafés. See the sacred sanctuary of Delos, one of the most important archaeological sites in the western world. And we'll also discover the distinctive pottery of Sifnos, the green marble quarries and Venetian-era dovecotes of Tinos, and mountainous Amorgós where residents still rely on donkeys for transportation.

Far from the philosophical and political intrigues of Athens, the expressive faces of the islands' welcoming people are weathered by wind, sun, sea, and salt spray. They sit together in the villages discussing the health of the olive and grape crops, how the fickle winds might affect the ferry call, the water level in the cisterns or the upkeep of the island churches—as they have for millennia.

“The Greek Isles continue to fascinate and delight the photographer side of me. Walking through the small choras, it feels like I’m walking through a kaleidoscope of colors and textures. These authentic villages are such an amazing mix of architectural details framed by flower pots, hanging vines, store windows, and even the numerous cats that seem to be napping everywhere. Narrow, curved walkways entice me to explore what is just around the corners, or follow an alley to see where it leads. It’s all both inviting and mysterious at the same time.”

Sailors have plied the waters along the coasts of Greece, Albania, Montenegro, and Croatia for millennia, and our expedition will follow in their paths as we explore regions with long, rich histories while enjoying special access and insights. Sail to Olympia, Greece, and along the extraordinary Dalmatian Coast, a region of incredible beauty with sparkling cities and tiny medieval sites.

Our guides will share Butrint, a UNESCO World Heritage site, with us, along with the dramatic transitions of Albania in the last 20 years, from a closed communist country, through a shocking period of capitalist naïveté and Ponzi-scheme collapse, to the steady rebuilding occurring today. In Montenegro you'll sail into the dramatic Kotor Fjord and explore the picturesque walled old town nestled at its head, with winding cobbled lanes, ancient churches, and small town squares. And lovely Dubrovnik, aglow at night or by day, is a city reborn, its ancient walls containing the past and protecting a lively present.

“The cultures of Athens, Rome, Venice, Constantinople and their rulers from Caesar to Tito all left their imprint—their presence still speaks to us in the architecture, languages, religions, and landscape of the Balkans. Homer’s “wine dark sea” connected these ruggedly independent states and sail is still the best way to experience their uniqueness. The mysterious Balkans remain diverse—churches, mosques, and synagogues continue to nourish a polyglot faithful. Roman amphitheaters, Greek Olympic stadiums, Byzantine churches, early Venetian trading centers, Dubrovnik’s Jewish quarter, Albania’s elegant minarets all grew from the same soil, all influencing each other and all nurtured by commerce and the sea. Come stand at the bow, taste the salt spray, and relive the rich tapestry of the Balkans on Sea Cloud.”
