

If the astonishing sight of some 100,000+ king penguins in one rookery alone were all this expedition offered; if at the end of our time among the kings—observing, listening, photographing, walking among and communing with them—our team said "Show's over, Folks," and everyone were to head back home—it's likely no one would complain, according to all our expedition leaders. It's that profound and rewarding an experience.

BUT THERE'S MORE: THE GREATEST WILDLIFE SPECTACLE ON EARTH.

There's life in such profusion that it boggles your mind as it sends your spirit soaring. Dense colonies of king penguins, fur seals, elephant seals, macaroni and gentoo penguins. Slopes of stunning windward cliffs teeming with grey-headed, black-browed and wandering albatross—nearly a third of all the birds of this species nest here. Plus, there are the rare endemics: the mighty South Georgia pipit, the only songbird in the Antarctic region and South Georgia's only passerine; and the Falkland's Johnny rook. (Life-listers take note.)

Once a killing ground for whalers, South Georgia is now a sanctuary, an extravagant celebration of wildlife and pristine wildness.

We travel with some of the best wildlife photographers on Earth, and even their best photos can't do this spectacle justice. So, we offer images on the following pages as an invitation—to see it all yourself.

Dear Traveler,

The comment cards, letters, emails and post-voyage reports I receive about South Georgia from our guests, expedition team, and captains all say, essentially, the same thing—"It was the most magical, amazing, extraordinary place I've ever been." And our guests extend the superlatives to the Falklands, exhilarated by all they discover there.

Among the planet's pre-eminent wildlife destinations, South Georgia and the Falklands are a must-see for those who love wild nature. But since the spectacle they offer is birds in astounding numbers—2018, the Year of The Bird, is the perfect time to go.

We're celebrating the Year of The Bird together with National Geographic, to honor a visionary piece of conservation legislation still in force today: the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, passed in 1918 through the advocacy of National Geographic founder Henry Henshaw and photographer George Shiras III (see more on pages 10-11).

On whichever departure you choose, when not out exploring, be sure to head to the Bridge to join our naturalists, our captain, and officers, for the fun of spotting and tallying the many Southern Ocean bird species you'll see. And if you choose the October 22, 2018 departure, you'll really get in the spirit—as you'll share the experience with renowned bird expert, author of The Sibley Guide to Birds, David Sibley, plus two of our veteran naturalists who have been designated Year of the Bird Ambassadors (see page 17).

In South Georgia and the Falklands, you'll discover an array of thriving, vibrant life like no other. The photographs ahead do their best to show you why we call it the Serengeti of the Southern Ocean, but they can't compare to being there. I promise it will exceed your every expectation.

All the best.

EXCLUSIVE SAVINGS

Enjoy complimentary airfare from Miami when you book by July 31, 2018. See page 24 for details.

The wealth of wildlife in the islands is simply staggering. Spot these species. Clockwise: A fur seal amid the tussock grass; a rockhopper penguin, Falkland Islands; guests get a close-up look at an elephant seal; a male wandering albatross spreads his wings to entice his mate; the tiny South Georgia pipit; a stately king penguin adult and fuzzy chick.

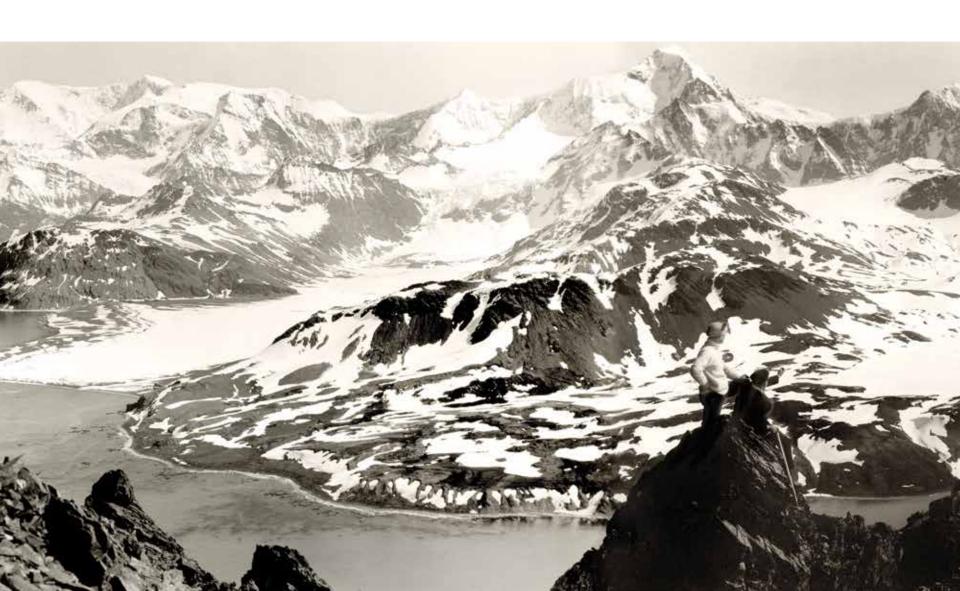

AND OVER IT ALL LIES THE SHIMMERING MANTLE OF HISTORY. South Georgia is where the saga of Ernest Shackleton's legendary Endurance expedition famously reached its dénouement. You'll have the opportunity to walk in the footsteps of part of his historic traverse from Fortuna Bay to the Stromness whaling station, now a ruin; and drink a toast to him at the site chosen as his final resting place.

Opposite page: Half of an archival panorama shot by Frank Hurley of Frank Worsley and Lionel Greenstreet looking across South Georgia Harbour with the Endurance at anchor below. A HIKING HIGH AT THE BOTTOM OF THE WORLD

South Georgia offers a one-of-a-kind combination of stunning scenery and history few other hikes worldwide can match. Conditions permitting, this challenging hike begins at Fortuna Bay, home to a sizable king penguin rookery (approximately 10,000 pairs), small numbers of breeding Antarctic fur seals, southern elephant seals, and some light-mantled sooty albatross; the trail head itself is at a distance from most of the wildlife density. A steep vertical trail through tussock grass—where depending on the season you might see resting fur seal mothers and pups—becomes a gradual but steady incline. Along the hike the scenery is mostly alpine with stunning views of the Allardyce Range, and interesting geology to observe: Cumberland formations of dramatically folded sandstones from tectonic activity that separated South Georgia from Gondwanaland long ago. Plus, an incredible vista: at the highest elevation, about two-thirds of the total hike distance, you have the overlook of Shackleton's waterfall. Crean Glacier in the distance, and the old Stromness whaling station below. A steep, but short, descent from there drops you back down onto a sea level outwash plain that leads down—a gradual and graceful descent—to Stromness Bay, and the elegiac ruins of the whaling station, with fur seals, and perhaps a few more elephant seals. Add to that the bragging rights—perhaps as few as 1 in 500,000 people can claim to have done it—and it's one for your personal memory bank.

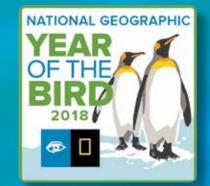

YEAR OF THE BIRD 2018

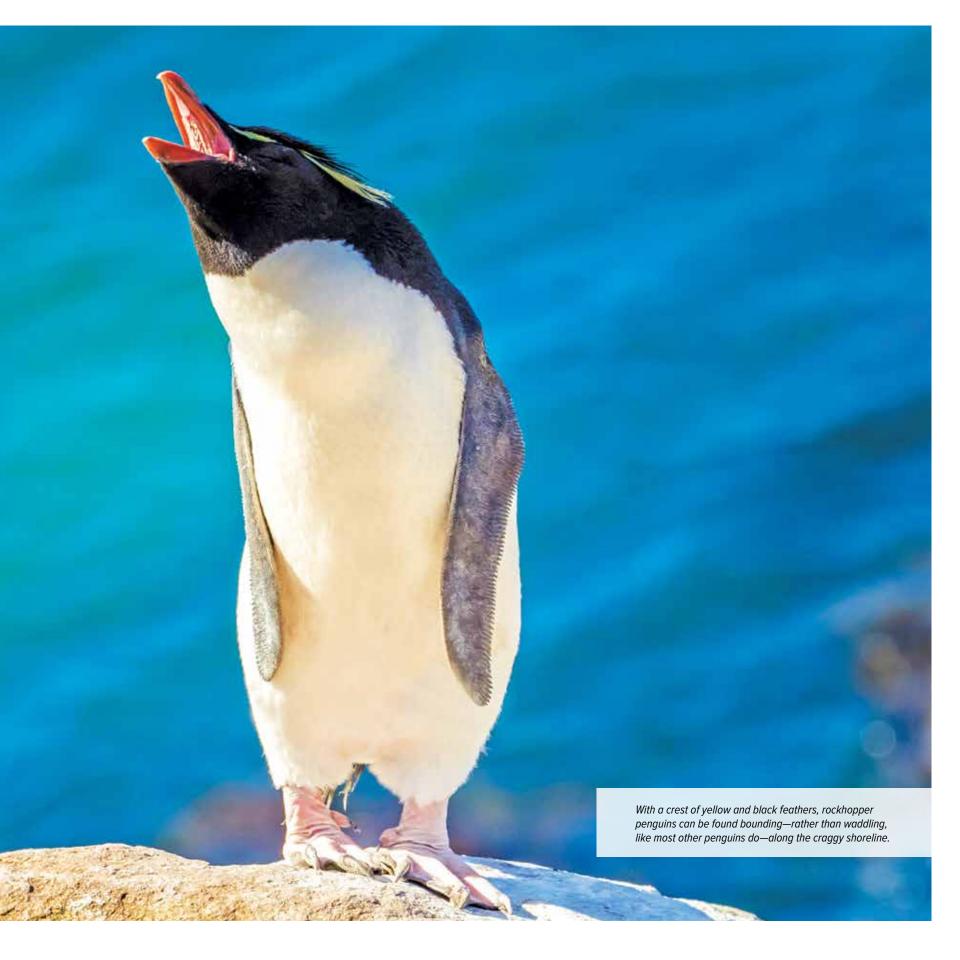

CELEBRATING THE YEAR OF THE BIRD. The year 2018 has been designated the Year of the Bird by National Geographic in partnership with a broad range of conservation organizations, in celebration of the 100-year anniversary of the passage of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act in 1918—a visionary act of legislation pushed through by National Geographic founder Henry Henshaw, and photographer and author George Shiras III, a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

One of the first laws of environmental conservation, it mandated the protection of nearly 1,000 species of migratory birds, many in danger of extinction from commercial exploitation at the time of its passage. This visionary act of legislation has saved the lives of millions of birds.

We invite you to celebrate the 2018 Year of the Bird with us by taking advantage of these exclusive opportunities:

- Year of The Bird Ambassadors | Veteran Lindblad naturalists to enrich your experience with bird info and insights.
- Renowned bird expert, David Allen Sibley aboard! | Take advantage of the opportunity to travel with the author of The Sibley Guide to Birds on his first ever foray into the Southern Ocean—our October 22, 2018 departure. And receive our Year of The Bird commemorative embroidered patch (right) with our compliments. It's a worthy remembrance of enlightened conservation.

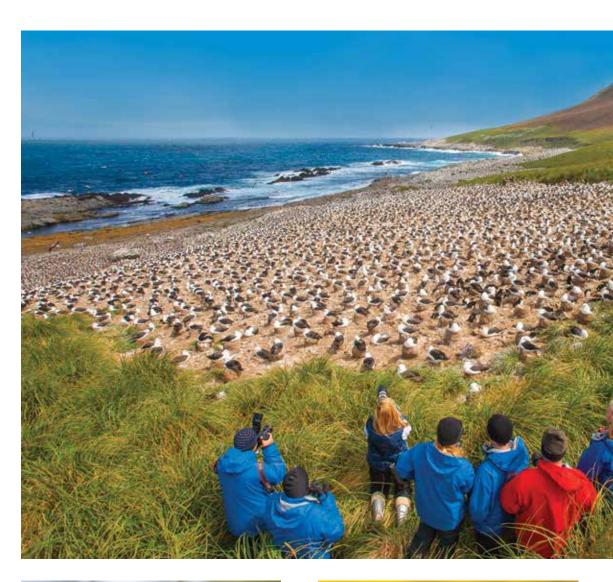

EXPERIENCING THE FALKLANDS

Some 3,000 people live in the Falklands; 2,500 in the capital, Stanley, and 500 distributed among the "settlements," the sheep farms on islands within the Falklands group. Among the highlights of our explorations here is walking—walking through the waving tussock grass to the windward cliffs studded with albatross pairs and fledglings. Walking to visit a gentoo penguin rookery. Walking alongside the bays, seeing steamer ducks and foraging Ruddy-head geese; across the graceful topography of meadows dotted with Magellanic penguin burrows; past the curious Johnny rooks (striated caracaras) to a humble welcoming home of a farmer, our friend for decades, to be greeted with a tea table groaning with homemade scones and cakes. You'll eat with the abandon of one who's walked miles in the freshest of air and seen wonders, and warm yourself in the glow of a fragrant peat fire. And a delight of a different type is Stanley, a last bastion of archival Britishness, with its shops, fish and chips, and excellent small museum. Choose to visit and you'll have the opportunity to see a highly illuminating and moving documentary on the British-Argentinian conflict—just another of the Falklands surprising 'reveals.'

FLY THE CROSSING!

You'll have the special opportunity to fly by private charter from the Falklands to Santiago, eliminating the sea crossing one-way.

The Falklands are part Britain, part wild kingdom.

This page, clockwise from top: Child with a lamb at a settlement on West Point Island; there's nothing quite like a Falklands farm tea with a splendid assortment of cakes, shortbread, lemon tarts and scones; in Stanley, evidence of the islands' long-standing allegiance to Britain; Magellanic penguins nestled in the tussock grass.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORER, THE FINEST BASE CAMP AN EXPLORER COULD WANT, allows us to freely roam. She is equipped with a fleet of Zodiacs and kayaks for up-close and personal explorations. Her Bridge is welcoming, inviting you to spend time with the Captain and officers, watching the calm business of navigation unfold. Explorer is also equipped for living well. The lounge, dining room and other public spaces contribute to the esprit de corps that is a hallmark of our expeditions. A fully stocked library serves those who want to learn more or curl up with a best-seller. The wellness center, gym, sauna, and stretching sessions with our wellness specialist boost the tonic of wildness nature provides. And cossetting cabins, outfitted with our signature linens and feather duvets provide the perfect ending to active days.

This page, from left: National Geographic Explorer's expansive decks invite you outdoors to relax and observe the vistas; Explorer's Bistro Bar is a lively alternative to the main dining room for meals and socializing.

THE QUALITY OF YOUR TRAVELING COMPANIONS CONTRIBUTES greatly to the quality of your experience. Flanking our expert expedition team are special guests who'll add an extra layer of insight and perspective to all you'll see and do. And your fellow guests will add much, too.

SOUTH GEORGIA AND THE FALKLANDS

19 DAYS/16 NIGHTS-ABOARD NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPLORER

PRICES FROM: $16,990 to $34,520 (See page 23 for complete prices.)

teeped in Shackleton and whaling lore, covered mostly in glaciers, South Georgia explodes with life: gentoo and king penguins, enormous elephant seals and a thriving fur seal population. Here on South Georgia you can observe one of the world's great wildlife spectacles: literally tens of thousands of stately king penguins on a single beach. The Falkland Islands are equally impressive, with colonies of nesting albatross and rockhopper penguins. This British Territory also adds a human element, with remote settlements and people living off the land.

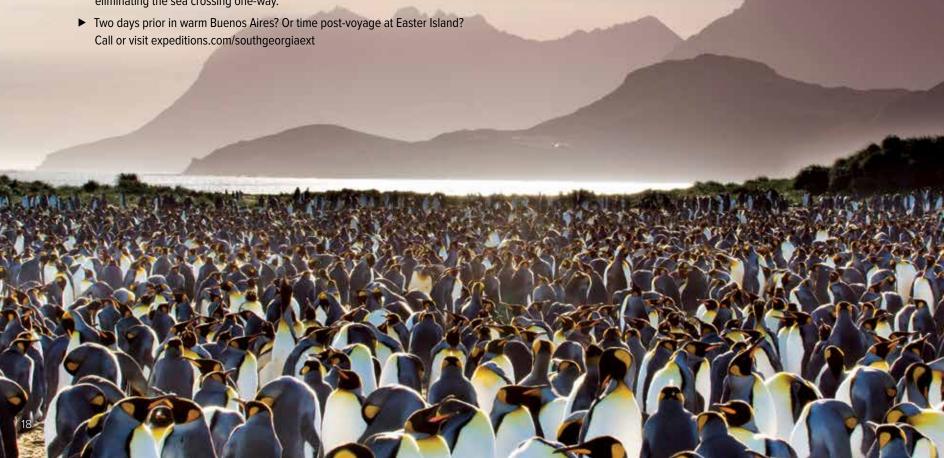

EXPEDITION HIGHLIGHTS

- Weather permitting, hike in the footsteps of Sir Ernest Shackleton's fated Imperial Trans-Antarctica Expedition aboard Endurance.
- ► See stately king penguins—literally tens of thousands on a single beach in South Georgia.
- ▶ Observe magnificent black-browed albatross in the Falklands, and see Magellanic penguins peeking from their burrows.
- ▶ Paddle a kayak amid curious fur seals, and Zodiac cruise in South Georgia's isolated bays.
- ➤ You'll have the special opportunity to fly by private charter from the Falklands to Santiago, eliminating the sea crossing one-way.

FLY THE FALKLANDS CROSSING!

On all of these departures, you'll have the opportunity to depart the Falklands by air, from the trim Royal Air Force base in East Falkland, a short ride from Stanley, to Santiago, Chile. Instead of spending the day at sea, you'll gain an extra day in the islands. And since you'll be landing in Santiago, you'll have the opportunity to spend a day or two there, if you wish, to experience an elegant city set against the backdrop of the Andes.

King penguins as far as the eye can see, South Georgia.

DAYS 1 AND 2: U.S./BUENOS AIRES,

ARGENTINA

Depart on an overnight flight to Buenos Aires. Settle into the Alvear Art Hotel (or similar) before seeing the city's Beaux-Arts palaces and the famous balcony associated with Eva Perón. (Day 2: L)

DAY 3: FLY TO USHUAIA/EMBARK

Fly to Ushuaia, the southernmost city in the world. Enjoy lunch on a catamaran cruise of the Beagle Channel before embarking. (B,L,D)

DAY 4: AT SEA IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC

Settle into shipboard life, listening to informal discussions from our naturalist staff to prepare for the wildness in the Falklands. Spend time on deck and on the bridge, scanning for petrels, penguins and albatross. (B,L,D)

DAYS 5 AND 6: FALKLAND ISLANDS

Each Falkland Island is a variation on the theme of topographical beauty with white-sand beaches, vaulting cliffs, windswept moors, and the sunlit yellows and sage greens of waving tussock grass. The Falklands boast thousands of irresistible gentoo, rockhopper and Magellanic penguins, as well as magnificent albatross and fur seals. Walk along beautiful white-sand beaches, meander through tussock grass or sit atop a cliff and ponder the views. (B,L,D)

DAYS 7 AND 8: AT SEA

During our days at sea, we learn about the fascinating history of Antarctic exploration, as well as the flora, fauna and geology of South Georgia. Our naturalists help identify the seabirds that follow us: wandering albatross, prions and black-browed albatross. (B,L,D)

DAYS 9-15: SOUTH GEORGIA ISLAND

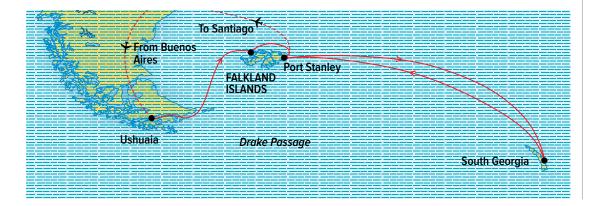

Explore the spectacular coastline of South Georgia Island. In keeping with the nature of an expedition, our schedule is flexible with opportunities for walking, hiking, kayaking and Zodiac excursions. Sailing along the coast, we plan to offer activities every day including visits to Grytviken, the final resting place of Shackleton, and Stromness Harbour, where Shackleton, Tom Crean and Frank Worsley finally reached aid at a whaling station. See huge elephant seals, and on a single beach, you will see thousands of king penguins! (B,L,D)

DAYS 16 AND 17: AT SEA/FALKLANDS

With whales beneath and birds above, head up to the bridge, or spend these days enjoying the ship's spa, fitness center, library, and observation deck. After time at sea, our journey across the South Atlantic Ocean takes us once more to the island archipelago that teems with nature. Our afternoon visit to Port Stanley offers a chance to see the human face of the islands, to meet the hospitable locals, hoist a drink at a local pub, and stroll around this remote colonial town. (B,L,D)

DAYS 18 AND 19: DISEMBARK PORT STANLEY, FALKLANDS/FLY TO SANTIAGO/U.S.

After breakfast, disembark in the Falklands capital city of Stanley, and transfer to the airport at Mount Pleasant for our private charter flight to Santiago to connect with your overnight flight home. (Day 18: B,L)

EXPERIENCING THE FALKLANDS WITH ALL YOUR SENSES

Whether it's satisfying your appetite, kindled by active exploring in exhilaratingly fresh air and expansive landscapes, or keeping your spirit of anticipation whetted during days at sea, the culinary side of our expedition team is equal to the challenge. From the bespoke omelets and array of choices at lavish breakfast and lunch buffets, to the artfully prepared and plated appetizers, entrées and desserts served at dinner, your experience will differ dramatically from the deprivation endured by the whalers and explorers, like Shackleton and his men, in the days of yore. It's fair to say: Vitamin C has never been as available in the Southern Ocean, or in as many delicious forms.

Clockwise from top: From farm to table, including Falklands lamb; each day delicacies from ganaches to lobster; another Falkland endemic—we were the first ship to serve this artisanal beer, crafted in the islands.

"Ushuaia, the southernmost city in the world, is not an agricultural center, and provisioning the ship there, with produce flown in from elsewhere in Argentina and Chile has always proved fraught. Now, with our support, Stanley Growers, located in the Falklands capital, is meeting our needs for fresh, sustainably-grown and superbquality produce. The teams enjoy every aspect of the relationship, from going to the farm when Explorer anchors in Stanley, to getting creative with what they find there. And of course, guests can join us on our visits, to meet the farmers and learn how remarkable this farm is—especially given its location on the planet."
